Garner Might Run In Illinois Race Against Roosevelt

Preferential Primary to Be Held April 9; Decision to Be Given Within Few Days

Bridges Speaks

New Hampshire's Senator Warms Up in Indiana Tonight

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—A contest between the forces of President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner for the backing of Illinois Democrats became a possibility today when friends of Garner disclosed that he might enter the state's preferential primary on April 9.

Mr. Roosevelt's name already has been put into the race for Illinois convention delegates by leaders of the state Democratic organization. The Chief Executive has given no indication of approval or disapproval.

Garner supporters said that a decision would be reached in a few days, although they described the situation as "very much up in the air." The vice president's managers have been following the general policy of seeking delegates in states without "favorite son" candidates for the presidential nomination.

On the Republican side, the campaign manager of Thomas E. Dewey expressed regret that Senator Taft (R-Ohio) had decided against filing in Illinois. Dewey is the only Republican entered in the state so far, and his backers have challenged all other aspirants to follow suit.

Will Give Decision
Taft described the Illinois primary as "merely advisory" because its action does not bind delegates, and said that he lacked the time to make an adequate campaign there. He said he would decide in about a week whether to contest against Dewey and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) in Wisconsin.

All three of these men were either on their way or preparing to leave for the west to take part in Republican Lincoln Day celebrations. About 700 party dinners have been arranged across the country during the week-end. Dewey is en route to Portland, Ore., for a speech Monday, and Vandenberg will speak in St. Paul Saturday night. Taft talked last night at Martinsburg, W. Va., expressing opposition to price control and "over-regulation" of farmers. His Lincoln Day speech will be given Monday at Greensboro, N. C.

Senator Bridges (R-N. H.), another presidential candidate who has traveled as extensively as Taft, warms up tomorrow night in Muncie, Ind., before speaking at Oklahoma City.

To Stop in Chicago
Vandenberg will stop in Chicago Saturday night to meet some of his supporters. He said that a Wisconsin delegation, headed by Lieut. Gov. Walter S. Goodland, who tops the senator's slate of 24 delegates entered in the state primary, would meet his train at Milwaukee.

Asserting that the Vandenberg-for-President Organization in Michigan had been active in his behalf in 20 states, the senator said he knew of no other state primaries besides Wisconsin where his name might be entered.

He emphasized that the Michigan group was acting "on its own responsibility." "I am entirely detached from this movement," Vandenberg said, adding that his name would "not

Three Are Killed Head-on Collision Causes Two Cars to Burst Into Flames at Bellport

Bellport, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP)—A head-on collision which caused both automobiles to burst into flames burned three persons to death last night and seriously injured a fourth.

The dead are: Charles H. Platt, 48, Bayville contractor, who was alone in one car, Ward Clement, 27, and Mrs. Barbara Klein, both of Patchogue, occupants of the other car.

George J. Krohn, New York city, also in the Clement car, received a leg fracture and third degree burns. He was taken to a Bayshore hospital.

Krohn told Coroner Grover Sillman the Platt car suddenly swerved in front of them and that he thought a blowout might have been the cause.

Mayor's Children Threatened

Betty Jane (center), 7, and Joanne, 8, daughters of Mayor Frank E. Lewis of Everett, Mass., are shown with one of the policemen assigned to guard them after their lives had been threatened in notes signed by "The Black Spade." The guard accompanied the girls to school so they could appear in a play as police investigated a 15-year-old boy's report he was slashed by "a dark man" when he refused to deliver a note to the mayor's home.

Council to Pick Dog Warden Friday Night

A dog warden for Kingston will be appointed at a salary of $60 a month, at a special meeting of the common council on Friday evening. There are said to be several applicants seeking the job.

The dog pound which was authorized by the ordinance adopted by the council Tuesday evening, will be located in a barn on the City Home farm on Flatbush avenue.

Employees of the public works board are now busy getting the barn ready and expect to complete the work by next Tuesday. There will be accommodations for 50 dogs at the pound.

The dog ordinance which was adopted Tuesday, has been signed by Acting Mayor John Schwenk.

Mullens Withdraws His Plan to Retire Due to State Probe

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP)—Governor Lehman today expedited procedure for the investigation he ordered into "alleged irregularities" in state printing contracts as an assistant state comptroller withdrew retirement plans in view of developments.

Twenty-four hours after his surprise move calling for the inquiry, the governor conferred with Bernard Botwin, whom he named counsel, and arranged discussions with former Chief Judge Frederick E. Crane of the Court of Appeals, a Republican designated by Lehman as special commissioner to direct the activities. Because of the impending investigation, Assistant State Comptroller Charles H. Mullens in a letter to State Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine withdrew hitherto discussed plans to retire "and interest myself in private enterprises."

Matter Has Arisen
"A matter has arisen," he wrote the comptroller, recuperating in Connecticut from a recent illness. "In respect to certain state printing contracts about which I was subpoenaed and testified before a grand jury in the county of New York, and even though under my proposed retirement of December 31 (1939), I could have refused to testify unless granted immunity, I willingly signed a waiver of immunity as a public official" and answered every question without hesitation whatsoever.

"I do not intend to let it be said that my retirement was due to the fact that I had been a witness before the grand jury. This of course would be an untruth because my retirement has been discussed by us at least two years."

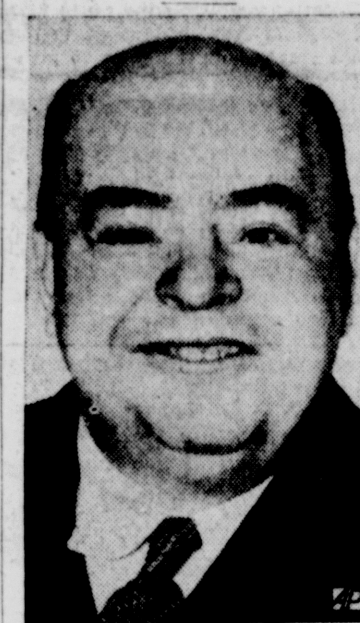

Mullens, who rose from a messenger in the state service in 1910 to his present $11,000 a year position, said he had "continued on" as assistant comptroller since December 31 without compensation because of Tremaine's illness "and because of the fact no successor had been picked."

Reason for Reference
Mullens' reference to testimony before the New York county grand jury was in connection with Manhattan Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey's inquiry into alleged bid-rigging in New York city printing contracts which subsequently developed state angles. This prompted Dewey aides to come to Al-

Huge Liens Filed Against Hopson And 4 Relatives

Five Corporations Also Are Listed; Claim Against Hopson Personally Is for $284,997

HOWARD C. HOPSON

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—Income tax liens totaling $2,664,954 are on file in federal court against Howard C. Hopson, 57, almost legendary figure of the late 1920's, starting finance, four of his relatives and five corporations which he dominated.

Hopson helped build the Associated Gas and Electric system into a billion-dollar business. He retired as officer and director of the system in 1935, retaining his financial interest.

The liens against him and the others, filed by the government yesterday, do not cover $5,000,000 in taxes due from companies in the gas and electric system. They may be applied on any property belonging to the persons and corporations named.

The action, federal authorities said, is not connected directly with the investigation of the gas and electric system's affairs being conducted by Hugh A. Fulton, named a special assistant to the attorney-general for that purpose. The company filed a reorganization petition January 10.

The largest single lien is for $1,024,939 and against the Public Utility Investing Corporation of Wilmington, Del., for taxes claimed for 1935 and 1936.

Against Hopson himself is a lien for $284,997 for 1934 and 1935 taxes.

The other claims: Transfer and Paying Agency, Jersey City, N. J., for 1933, 1934, 1935 and 1936 taxes, $569,653; General Realty and Securities Corporation of Wilmington, Del., for 1935, 1936 and 1937, $449,103; Utility Auditors and Tax Consultants, Jersey City, for 1935, $6,218; Finance and Securities Assistants, Jersey City, for 1937, $3,000.

Mrs. Amy H. Starch, Scarsdale, N. Y., Hopson's sister, for 1930, 1931, 1932, 1934 and 1935, $131,484; Miss Perle Hopson, Scarsdale, for 1931, 1934 and 1935, $103,060; Mrs. Norma H. Jones, Scarsdale, another sister, for 1932, $71,838, and Daniel Starch, brother-in-law, for 1934, $662,

Father Paul Dies At Graymoor; Was Founder of Church

Also Served at St. John's as Father Watson; Was Monastery Organizer Near Garrison

The Very Rev. Paul James Francis, 77, founder and father general of the Graymoor monastery and retreat, near Garrison, died today of a heart attack, the Associated Press reports.

He established the Franciscan Friars of the Atonement whose St. Christopher's Inn is open to all men. There they may come and remain as long as they wish, regardless of religious belief.

Father Paul had been active in his duties through last night. Stricken suddenly this morning, he died an hour later.

He was born at Millington, Md., and educated at Burlington, N. Y. College; St. Stephens College, Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y., and later at the Protestant Episcopal General Theological Seminary.

He served churches in Maryland and New York and was head of the Associated Mission in Omaha from 1895 to 1899. In 1899, he established the Franciscan Friars of the Atonement at Graymoor.

Joins Church of Rome
The Sisters of the Atonement had been established the year before by Mother Lurana Francis and on October 30, 1909, both congregations were corporately received into the Roman Catholic Church.

Father Paul founded the Missionary Association of the Union-That-Nothing-Be-Lost and was editor of its organ, The Lamp.

Associates tell the story that the inspiration for the union came to him one day after he had read the tale of Christ feeding the multitude from five barley loaves and two fishes and admonishing his disciples to pick up the fragments that nothing be lost.

An associate of Father Paul's said he decided that many missionaries could be maintained on what is wasted and a program was launched. Graymoor served as a point of distribution of alms under the plan and more than $6,000,000 has been sent to missionaries throughout the world through his efforts.

Father Paul inaugurated the Church Unity Octave, January 18, 1925, which is now observed throughout the Catholic world. This octave is based on eight days of prayer, starting January 18, each day being set aside for its own intention in his dream of the reunion of all Christendom.

Father Paul was ordained a Roman Catholic priest, June 16, 1910.

Local Background
The Rev. William A. Grier, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, Pine Grove avenue, this city, today prepared the following biographical sketch of the late Father Paul:

Father Paul James Francis, S. A.
Lewis Thomas Watson, the youngest son of the Rev. Joseph Newton Watson and his wife, Mary Electa Watson, was born January 16, 1863, at Millington, Kent county, Maryland. He graduated from the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church in New York city in 1885 with the degree of Bachelor of Divinity and was ordained deacon on May 30, 1885. For the first five months of his ministry, he served at Port Deposit, Maryland, when he was called to the rectory of St. John's Church, Kingston. Although only a deacon and so canonically unable to become rector of a parish, his coming was made possible by his father's coming to live with him in Kingston and giving the priestly ministrations the son was unable to give. By a special dispensation from Bishop Potter, the young man was ordained priest when still a year below the canonical age (he was only 23). A few months later, his father died.

Soviet-Franco Argument Arises Over Raids Upon Red Offices

British Will Back Plant Would Make Shells Solely for Allies

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 8 (AP)—Leland Lyon, president of the Atlas Powder Company, disclosed today that the British government has advanced money to his company for construction in the United States of an explosives plant whose total output would be consigned to the British and French armies.

"We expect to begin building immediately and to have the plant in production within six months," Lyon said.

He refused to amplify this statement other than to say that operation of the plant would necessitate an increase in the number of Atlas employees.

The Atlas plans came to light, the Wilmington Morning News said, as a result of a treasury ruling published yesterday in the Internal Revenue Bureau's weekly bulletin.

Mentioning neither the company nor the government involved, the ruling declared that money advanced by a foreign government to an American company for construction of a factory in the United States to fill a foreign order was not taxable income of the American concern since the advance was in the form of a loan.

Buffalo Price Is Reduced, but Up in Albany, Utica

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—The cost of building a standard six room house declined during the past year in Buffalo, but increased in White Plains, Albany and Utica, the Federal Home Loan Bank Review reported today.

The Review, official publication of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said in its February issue that the cost of building a standard six room house in Buffalo in January was $5,683 compared with $5,763 last year.

Costs for the three other cities were:

Utica, $5,826 in January 1940 and $5,726 in 1939; White Plains, $5,600 in January 1940 and $5,540 in 1939; Albany $5,619 in January 1940 and $5,474 in 1939.

Finland Reports New Victories; More Troops Arrive In England

(By The Associated Press)
A Russian-French controversy over raids on Soviet offices in Paris flared during a day marked by Finnish reports of fresh success against the Red army and disclosure of the arrival of new Canadian troop contingents in Britain.

Finland announced capture of "several" Russian patrols who parachuted to earth behind the Finnish lines disguised as Finnish soldiers.

Soviet attacks on the Karelian isthmus, northeast of Lake Ladoga and further north along the frontier, were said to have been repulsed and four Russian planes downed.

The Canadian troops were the third contingent to arrive in Britain to swell the empire's forces for war on Germany.

Authorized French sources disclosed France has 275,000 troops in the near east, fearing that war may spread to that section of the world.

The French government was reliably reported to have rejected a Soviet protest against a police raid Monday on the Russian commercial office in Paris, contending diplomatic immunity was not involved.

A Russian communique said 100 French plainclothes policemen took part in the raid, that it extended to homes of the Russian staff, that documents were seized and Soviet citizens searched.

French accounts said three Russian agents had been detained temporarily but later freed. Russian Ambassador Jakob Surits demanded return of the seized documents.

The raids further embittered Russian-French relations, already strained by the Daladier government's suppression of the French Communist Party and French support for Finland.

London reports said the first contingent of British volunteers might leave for Finland next week. With the apparent blessing of the British government, which said yesterday substantial material aid was on its way to Finland, the Finnish legation has arranged the enlistment of "hundreds" of volunteers in England.

On the western front France and Germany both reported intensified patrol activity, but there was no indication of any more important military developments.

The larger role which maritime warfare has played thus far in the conflict between Germany and the Allies was indicated by a German communique recapitulating shipping losses through January 31.

The Germans acknowledged losing 42 ships totalling 236,957 tons since the war started, but said Britain, France and neutral nations had lost at least 409 ships aggregating 1,493,431 tons.

A British spokesman in London quickly disputed the German figures asserting the total merchantmen lost by the Allies and neutrals up to midnight February 4 was 274, and that no British or French ships were among the 354 which Germans said they had taken as prizes.

One Man, 20 Crushed by Tons of Soil

Thomas Decker Dies When Buried Beneath Cave-in; Ellenville Man in Benedictine

Has Minor Wounds

Third Man Unknown. Escapes With Slight Injuries

Theodore Decker, 20, of Kerhonkson, was crushed to death, and Henry Kemmerer, 29, of Ellenville, is confined in the Benedictine Hospital with a broken leg and a back injury, as the result of being caught in a cave-in following a blast set off in the tunnel at Shaft 2-A on the Shawangunk Mountains above Kerhonkson as part of the additional water supply system for New York city.

A third man caught in the cave-in escaped with minor injuries. His name was not ascertained.

At the time of the tragedy the men were at work in the tunnel at the shaft being sunk in the side of the mountain above Kerhonkson as part of the additional water supply system for New York city.

Blasting in Tunnel
A blast had been set off in the tunnel and following the blast Decker was buried as part of the roof of the tunnel caved in. Kemmerer was also caught in the cave-in.

Fellow workmen set about excavating to rescue the men. Decker was found dead. His body was horribly crushed. Kemmerer's injuries were such that he was rushed to the Benedictine Hospital here where his condition today was reported as fair. The extent of the back injury is not known as yet.

Decker was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Decker of Kerhonkson. Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, Arthur and Stanley, and two sisters, Anna and Helen, all at home.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the H. B. Humiston Funeral Home in Kerhonkson, with burial in the Pine Bush Cemetery, near Kerhonkson. The Rev. Harold Schadevall of Pine Bush will officiate at the services.

Naval Officer, Wife Found Dead at Home

Honolulu, Feb. 8 (AP)—A naval board of inquiry is investigating the deaths of Lieut. George F. Stanish, Jr., and his beautiful 23-year-old wife. They were found in their Waikiki apartment yesterday.

Captain of Detectives Benjamin Van Keuren said three notes, apparently written by the 29-year-old officer, indicated he had shot his wife while she slept and then killed himself. His hand clenched a service pistol.

Neighbors said Mrs. Stanish, who came to Honolulu last December, attended a bridge party Tuesday afternoon and had seemed in good spirits.

Stanish came here in October and was attached to the U.S.S. Northampton. He was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1934.

Stanish and his wife met at Great Falls, Mont., late in 1937 and were married June 1, 1938, at Santa Ana, Calif.

Diving Ducks

Greenville, S. C., Feb. 8 (AP)—A big flock of wild ducks circled Municipal Airport and eyed the shining water below. They dived. Thud...Thud...Thud. Then the amazed ducks made quick take-offs. For they hadn't landed on lakes at all—just rain water on the runways.

Switzerland Tells Soviet Expert He Must Leave Within Two Weeks

Berne, Feb. 8 (AP)—Switzerland today ordered Soviet Russia's League of Nations expert, Vladimir Sokoline, to leave the country within two weeks.

The Swiss federal and Geneva cantonal governments, rejecting Moscow's explanation for wanting to keep Sokoline in Switzerland, quickly dismissed the German figures asserting the total merchantmen lost by the Allies and neutrals up to midnight February 4 was 274, and that no British or French ships were among the 354 which Germans said they had taken as prizes.

Slight Rain Fails to Aid New York's Water Supply

Rainfall in the New York city watershed Tuesday failed to do much in the way of increasing the water supply of the city and the water level in the Ashokan system continued to drop slowly despite the rain, it was learned today.

At the Prattville station a rainfall of .014 inches was recorded while records show a rainfall of .054 inches at the headworks at Brown Station. This rainfall was not sufficient to increase storage and the system lost slightly because the withdrawal was more than the inflow.

Water is still being sent to New York city from the lower basin of the Ashokan reservoir and this water is being augmented by water from the upper basin which is being sent through the gates of the dividing weir to the lower basin. This is being done to keep the upper basin as low as possible in order that any sudden spring freshet may be retained in the upper basin and allowed to settle before being delivered to the lower basin from where water of a clearer nature is sent to the city.

Has 4 1/2 Billions

With a capacity of 150 billion gallons of water the Ashokan system now has in storage 4 1/2 billion gallons. This is a low storage but is still considerable more than was in the Ashokan system in 1931 at this season of the year, when there were but 25 billion gallons in storage. At that time, however, there was considerably more snow on the ground ready for the spring thaw.

At the present time there is comparatively little snow on the ground. The rain of early this week fell as rain in the lower mountains but in the Schoharie county it was snow. At Edgewood, Woodland Valley, Pine Hill and the upper mountain country the fall was also snow. This accounts for the comparative small inflow of water into the Ashokan from the upper Esopus.

Those who recall a few years back when the Ashokan reservoir was very low and the old highway across the Beaverkill swamps was clearly seen, will be astonished by the fact that at present there is considerable water over that locality. At present the old West Hurley station site, which was clearly seen out of water in 1931, still is covered by 11 feet of water. New York city officials are taking every means of conserving the water supply. Warning cards are being displayed in subway trains urging people to conserve water and make repairs to fixtures which are dripping and wasting water. Unless there is considerable more snow and a vast amount of spring rainfall the city of New York will enter the spring and summer season with an extremely low supply of water. This is contrary to the condition in 1931, when during the winter the supply was low but there was a great amount of snow in the mountains which ran off in the spring to replenish the low reservoirs.

House Group Gives Approval Today To Trade Program

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—The House ways and means committee, voting along partisan lines, gave its approval today to continuation of Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade program for another three years.

The continuance, bitterly fought by the Republican minority, probably will be called up for House action week after next. Rep. Keating (D., Penna.) predicted it would win approval after he had polled the House in his capacity as majority whip.

On the final vote of committee approval, 14 Democrats voted for the continuing resolution and 10 Republicans were opposed. Rep. Disney (D., Okla.) voted "present."

Just before this final vote, an amendment by Disney to prevent alteration of any import export taxes in the trade agreements was defeated. Disney voted with the Republicans.

The Oklahoma man has contended that lowering of the import excise tax on oil from one-half cent to one-quarter cent per barrel, for a certain quota of the commodity, in the Venezuelan trade pact was harmful to independent American producers.

There are excise taxes on oil, coal, lumber and copper.

Committee action came after several weeks of hearings.

Secretary Hull, who fathered the reciprocal trade program, acted in another field today by writing the Senate foreign relations committee that the state department did not consider continuation of relations with Russia "wholly contingent" upon fulfillment of the Russian pledges of 1933.

He noted that "the very channels which exist by virtue of diplomatic relations" might serve to adjust international troubles.

Youth Congress Turns Toward Capital Today

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—Hundreds of young people, six or eight of them with White House invitations in their pockets, turned toward Washington today to attend the American Youth Congress and to serenade the President with—

"We've been getting nothing else but love, Franklin."

"That's the thing that youth's got plenty of, Franklin."

The congress expects 3,500, including sharecroppers from Oklahoma, college students from the coast, industrial workers from the middle west, and young Communists from New York—in spite of protests against "Reds."

Their slogan is: Jobs, peace and civil liberties. And they have at least one song and a dozen stunts for each subject.

Five Chicago girls are planning to push baby carriages up Pennsylvania avenue with signs saying: "No war babies."

The songs will be blared from sound wagons Saturday morning on the march up the avenue to the White House lawn, where President Roosevelt will speak.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—Aircraft, steel, motors and specialties furnished mild rallying stimulation for the stock market today. Although numerous issues were unable to attract followings, gains for favorites ran to a point or so near the final hour. Volume picked up for a while after noon, then slackened. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 700,000 shares.

The news budget was a two-way affair but neither good nor bad items brought any great speculative stir. The majority of traders inclined to tread carefully pending further light on business trends, the congressional economy push, politics and the European war.

Bonds were quiet and selectively higher. European securities market got nowhere. Commodities were narrowly mixed.

Ford Steel Order Brightens Outlook

Report from Detroit yesterday stated that Ford Motor Co. had placed the first big order for steel for automotive purposes of this season. The order amounted to 40,000 tons and only minor price concessions were made. The business is believed to have gone to Great Lakes Steel, or to that company and Republic Steel.

Order brightens outlook for steel companies whose lowered operations have accounted for a large portion of the drop in industrial output in recent weeks. This is shown by the Federal Reserve Board's adjusted index of industrial production, which is estimated to have stood at 120 per cent of the 1923-25 average in January as against 128 per cent in December, which was a record high for any month. Despite the drop, which reflected absence of the usual seasonal expansion, the figure was at about the highest level for any January it was indicated yesterday. In January, 1929, the adjusted index stood at 119.

Senate-House conference committee, working on new transportation legislation, agreed upon three changes in the Interstate Commerce Act which would greatly assist railroads in meeting competition from other agencies. One change would shorten materially time in which roads could make "changes in short-haul rates."

Preliminary earnings report by General Motors for the year 1939 indicate that fourth quarter results reached a record high for the period, as increased sales were turned into profits. Factory shipments of cars and trucks from plants in the U. S. and Canada during the last quarter substantially exceeded the previous record, made in 1936.

General Motors reports earnings of $183,300,000, equal to $4.64 a common share, comparing with net of $102,190,007, or $2.17 a share in 1938.

At least 300 people from Wall Street are expected to go to Albany Monday to appear before the budget hearing in protest against the present state stock transfer tax.

Utilities in the Dow-Jones averages just failed to make the grade Wednesday, but industrial and railroads showed gains. Industrial stocks were up .70 point for the day, to close at 146.63, with most issues selling at the best levels of the day. Rails advanced .10, to 50.83, acting somewhat better although carloadings are expected to show less than seasonal gain.

Utilities closed at 24.79, off .01. Declines in grains and silk offset small advances in other commodities yesterday and the Dow-Jones index was off .10 point for the day. After an early rise wheat dipped to close with losses of 1/2 to 3/4 cents a bushel at Chicago.

Corn was off 1/2 cent. Cotton market showed a firm undertone and futures closed one to four points higher. Conditions continued quiet in North Street, with only scattered fill-in buying. Dullness in raw sugar curbed activity in the sugar futures markets. There were sharp advances in the London rubber market.

Although private expenditures for new durable goods last year represented a gain of 18 per cent over 1938, it was still 10 per cent below 1937, when the total was $17,204,000,000. The 1939 total was 33 per cent below that for 1929 and 29 per cent below the six year average (1923-28).

Schenectady's melting pool over a reduction of $230,000 in its bonded indebtedness last year, a cut of 40 cents in its tax rate and collection of $76,000 in delinquent taxes. Bonded indebtedness has been reduced $1,976,694 in the past three years and tax rate reduced $1.84.

Preliminary report of N. Y. O. & W. road shows a loss of $1,882,784 in 1939, after taxes and charges, somewhat better than in 1938, when the loss was $1,994,314. December net loss was $140,288.

5-Room Cottage Simplicity With Accented Horizontals

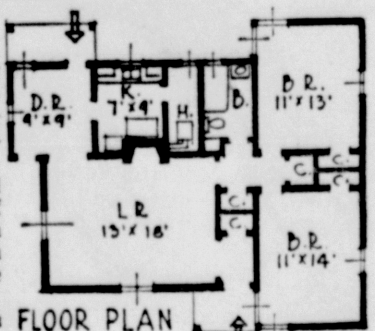

(P) Feature Service

This is a five-room, one-story frame house incorporating all the simplicity of cottage design, without the cottage "stamp." It may be built with or without a basement.

The simple horizontal structural lines are accented by the use of heavy drip molding set between wide drop siding. A gabled porch may be added at the end of the living room.

With supervised construction and a certificate of registration under the Federal Home Building service plan, this house should cost in the neighborhood of Washington, D. C., between $3,500 and $4,500. That doesn't include the cost of a lot and a basement. If your local lending institutions are unable to give you further information, write the Federal Home loan bank board, Washington, enclosing copy of this article.

Direct Air Mail Service Extended to Small Cities

Direct air mail service to small cities and towns, previously reserved for large centers of population where the volume of business warrants large airports and mail handling facilities, is now daily available to 58 localities throughout Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, and Delaware. This service is made possible by a delivery and pickup system that literally works "on the fly."

At the mail station, the outgoing bag of mail is suspended from a rope stretched between two poles some 30 feet high and 60 feet apart. As the specially equipped plane approaches the station a bag of incoming mail is lowered from the plane on the end of a cable, and, at the same time, a four-pronged grapple is lowered on another cable. The rush of air keeps the two cables from tangling.

When the plane reaches the station the incoming mail bag is dropped, while the plane flies on. Passing over the rope supporting the outgoing mail bag, the grapple engages the rope, which is released by spring clips at the poles, whereupon the mail clerk in the plane reels in the bag and goes on about his business of sorting mail while the plane flies on with undiminished speed to the next station. As many as 75 pickups have been made in one day without a single landing.

The mail bags used in this system are protected by round noses of hard fiber and by rubber "skirts" which prevent damage when the bag is dropped. Shock to the plane when picking up a bag of mail at 100 miles an hour is absorbed by springs on the reeling-in winch and by a delayed action roller by which the bag is suspended from its supporting rope.

15-Year-Old Radio 'Ham' Contacts 1,600 Stations

Hugh T. Anderson of Greenville, S. C., 15-year-old "ham," has sent radio code signals that have been heard and answered by 1,600 stations in 52 foreign countries and the United States.

He's one of the youngest amateur radio operators in the nation. Yet, he's a veteran with an enviable record.

Four years ago he began studying the international radio code with his brother, Burton. Last fall he received his license to operate after passing a Federal Communications commission examination.

Later he was on the air, his freckled, steady hand pounding out messages. He has mailed 600 postcards to verify air contacts and has received 400 replies. These include messages from Cape Verde island, Guam, Howland island, Tasmania, Bahrain island in the Persian Gulf, and Nigeria. He also has contacted Norway, Finland and Japan.

His communications with Italy, Salvador, Yugoslavia and the Republic of Panama have been of particular interest, for laws there prohibit operation of amateur stations and force operators to transmit secretly.

Business Slower

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Hopkins said in a statement today that "January business fell below the high level established in December," but added that trade still was brisker than a year ago.

She had been a resident of the community for 20 years, and previously lived at Acra, Greenville county, where she was born. Baldwin of Hunter, and a granddaughter, June Rice Baldwin; two brothers, Edward Haney of Bensonville and Henry Haney of the same community, also one sister, Mrs. Edith Winchell of Windham. Her funeral will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. from her late residence. Burial will be in Maplewood cemetery, the Rev. Carl Allen of the Hunter M. E. Church officiating.

"We hope to bring Nijinsky to the United States," said Hurok, who is directing the Ballet Russe here. "The matter of finances can be taken care of. I am sure, and I will be glad to assist in providing for his transportation and the bond necessary to get him into the United States."

New Constitution And Its Effect on Cities Explained

John M. Cashin, corporation counsel of Kingston, gave an enlightening talk on city government at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club held Wednesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Rotarian Cashin dwelt at some length on the effect to municipalities of the amendments to the State Constitution, which were adopted by the voters in the general election held in November 1938.

The amendments in relation to the constitutional debt limit of municipalities and the pension system were cited by the speaker. Action now arising on these questions as the result of the new State Constitution, he said, must be taken without any choice by local municipalities. The present city administration did not originate these changes and regardless of what administration is in power in the future similar action will have to be taken.

The constitutional borrowing power, which now is placed at 10 per cent of the assessed valuation, will be reduced by these amendments, until by January 1, 1941 the city can not raise by taxation for city purposes on real estate in excess of two per cent of the average assessed valuation, exclusive of debt service. This would mean that the city would be short approximately $240,000 to meet the cost of government.

The legislature by general or special law may exclude the two per cent limit on real estate for education purposes.

These limitations, he said, may result in the further soaring of taxes to meet the huge cost of government. Figures on the costs of this city government in recent years and the important role the taxpayer played in meeting these expenditures were stressed by the speaker.

The pension system for policemen and firemen, which is now before the common council, was another new law stressed by the speaker. This law which will be effective after July 1, 1940, shall be a contractual relationship, the benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired. The issuance of pension bonds, he said, although not chargeable to our constitutional borrowing power, will decrease the debt limit of the city by the amount of the accrued liabilities in the same manner as if the bonds had actually been issued.

Guests present at the luncheon included Rotarians Norman Bull of Poughkeepsie, Arthur Elmhurst of Newburgh and John Wright of Scotia and Thomas McCracken of Albany. A. R. Guenther of New York city, Leon Bernard of this city and Robert Denhardt of Poughkeepsie.

Announcement was made by Secretary Brown that on Wednesday, February 21, Kingston Rotary will observe the 35th birthday of Rotary International, and on Wednesday, February 28, an area assembly meeting will be held here in the evening.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, vice president of the National Council of Boy Scouts of America, continues the example set by his father, the late president, one of Scouting's truest friends.

Directs Charities

Among the highly trained workers on the staff of the Catholic Charities agency is Robert E. Curran, who is in charge of the Ulster county office at 261 Fair street. He succeeds Miss Grace Connolly, who was transferred to Staten Island after working in Ulster county since 1937. Mr. Curran has a fine record in professional training and experience in social work which guarantees a continuance of the high standard of Catholic Charities work in the county.

A Woman Scorns

Between tears and jeers, Miss Thelma Spear (above), who claims 16 years of association with Author Ludwig Lewisohn as his wife, tells her story to reporters in her New York apartment. She said she wished her separation from Lewisohn—whose marriage to Edna Manley at Baltimore she tried to prevent—had been "more chivalrous." A dramatic soprano, she said she was the mother of Lewisohn's 6-year-old son. She has a home at Burlington, Vt.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of these gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. The worst of all is that they are sometimes wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 12 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MUCH MONEY, LITTLE WEALTH

A son of Dr. Francis Townsend, who is carrying on his father's work, explains the nature of money in this fashion:
 "Money is something that we make for ourselves, and when there is a scarcity of it we are just fools. All we have to do is to devise a plan to enable all of us, black or white, to get our hands on money, and then we won't have to worry about relief and poor farms any more."
 And that is all there is to it? We'd like to think so. It would make the economic problem so simple and easy. We'd just start printing a lot of money and putting it into circulation, say in the form of dollar bills. We'd insist on people taking them and using them. And when there were enough of them, moving fast enough from pocket to pocket and hand to hand, business would flourish and everybody would be prosperous.

Or wouldn't it work that way? A newspaper man tells of picking up, some years ago, on the sidewalk of Berlin, a bank note for a million marks and normally worth 250,000 American dollars. And he couldn't buy a box of matches with it. Why? Because there was no solid value, no gold or silver, no property, no goods, back of that piece of engraved paper.

Such money was being printed and passed around so plentifully that everybody had a lot of it—so it wasn't worth anything. The same man says he has traveled in many lands, and has always found that the countries with the most money in circulation were the poorest.

INVENTION

We have so many days and weeks now scheduled for special celebration that we tend to neglect all but half a dozen of the most important. But there is good reason to remember and venerate National Invention Day, which comes on the birthday of Thomas A. Edison, February 11.

We Americans are, and long have been, the most inventive nation in the world. Edison was not only our most prolific inventor of new devices and methods, but probably the greatest inventor in human history. There have been many other men who invented one or two new things of great value to mankind, but Edison produced scores of important devices based on new principles, and his useful contributions to human progress and comfort ran into the hundreds. His example has brought an ever-widening stream of new ideas and products.

One city mayor, urging adequate celebration of the day, speaks of "the debt we owe to the courageous and creative spirit of our inventors." It always takes courage to branch out in new directions and undertake things that people say cannot be done. But success turns the laugh on the scoffers.

The securing of a patent for a basic radio circuit, controlling regeneration by Rodney F. Pratt of Ellenville, who has been bedridden for more than seventeen years as the result of a spinal injury proves in large measure that there are still as many opportunities today in the field of inventions as there ever were, and the rewards may be greater.

SAFE DRIVING
 In the matter of safe-driving records, perhaps attention should be called to the drivers of busses operating on a group of midwestern lines. They have just been awarded, collectively, a golden trophy four feet high for first place in a nation-wide safety contest.

There were 81 bus lines involved. Records showed that the drivers had covered 98,781 miles for every "chargeable accident."

That's about as much driving as an average motorist would do in ten years, and a record for drivers in general to shoot at. In view of the greater difficulty of handling a big, heavy bus with a lot of passengers, in all weathers, it might be roughly equivalent to 20 or 25 years' driving of a private car.

CLOCKS AND WHISTLE
 The 2,000 residents of Mount Carroll, Ill., have courageously met a great crisis in their living habits. For years they depended on a steam whistle at a local college to waken them in the morning. The whistle was blown at 7 a. m. as a rising signal for students. But it could be heard throughout the town and got up for their day's work many people who had no connection with the educational institution.

Times change. The rising rules have been relaxed at the college. Students do not have to rise so early, and perhaps they do not all have to rise at the same time. At any rate, the president ordered that the whistle be blown no more.

Did the city oversleep thereafter? Not at all. There was a rush for alarm clocks at local stores. Life went on as usual.

Maybe this shows that it isn't so easy as we sometimes fear to undermine American self-reliance and ingenuity.

MIXED WEATHER

The weather in this country has certainly been erratic lately. Along with the astonishing push of winter into the deep south, there were instances of hardly less surprising mildness in the north.

Thus when it was 5 below zero in Birmingham, Ala., it was 16 above in Boston. When it was down to 37 degrees in Miami, which is almost our farthest south, it was two degrees higher away up in Kodiak, Alaska. Nashville, Tenn., registered 13 below to New York city's 14 above.

Perhaps we shall adjust ourselves, in time, to the weather whims of this temperamental continent. As transportation improves, we may just hop into fast airplanes and, in an hour or two, land in places where it is as warm or as cold as we want it. With air transportation only a little better than it is now, we might have the sky filled with weather commuters skittering hither and yon according to their climatic tastes.

Modern warfare is largely shooting across No Man's Land at somebody you can't see, for reasons you don't understand.

DO DRUGS REDUCE HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE?

Sometimes when a physician knows that a patient is very nervous and unable to sleep, he prescribes a "quieting" drug to be used a few minutes before the patient wishes to go to sleep. Sometimes if the drug is not very powerful he advises that one be taken at the regular time and if sleep does not come soon, a second pill, capsule, or tablet. The fact that the second one is available usually allays the patient's fears about not getting to sleep and is scarcely ever used.

Some physicians in an endeavor to prevent the patient from depending too much on quieting drugs, or to prevent the accumulation of the drug in the system, use placebos which have exactly the same appearance but contain none of the quieting drug. In many "nervous" cases, these placebos act as well as the drug itself.

One of the conditions that frighten many is high blood pressure. Will a vessel break in the head or in the heart owing to this high pressure? That drugs can lower the blood to any extent is not admitted by the medical profession but these patients look for some treatment just the same.

Drs. W. Evans and C. Loughan, in the British Heart Journal, tell of their observations of the effect of thirty-three often-used preparations on the blood pressure and symptoms of seventy patients with high blood pressure. The preparations included nitrates, iodides, quieting drugs, vegetable extracts, and the endocrine gland extracts (hormones). Each remedy was used in the usual dosage for test periods of a fortnight and at the end of each period the patient was examined, at which time the blood pressure was recorded always under the same conditions, and any change in symptoms was noted. Test periods were then given for each patient in which a placebo was the only treatment given. After making due allowances for increase in blood pressure when examination is made for the first or second time, Drs. Evans and Loughan found that none of the thirty-three preparations used reduced the blood pressure more than did the placebos.

What do we learn from the above? Drugs help cases of high blood pressure only because they "quiet" the patient and relieve some of the tension due to nervousness.

If we learn to live quietly or calmly, we can do much to prevent the harmful effects of high blood pressure.

How Is Your Blood Pressure?

Is your blood pressure high? Is it low? Do you know what precautions to take in either case? Send today for Dr. Barton's instructive booklet entitled "How Is Your Blood Pressure?" No. 108, enclosing ten cents to cover cost of service and handling and mention the Kingston Daily Freeman. Address your request to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

New York—A one-time newspaper man, who has replaced the red ink on an airline's ledgers with black, credits a good part of his success as an executive to his training as a reporter. "A man must pay attention to details," says Sigmund Janas, president of Canadian Colonial Airways, operating between New York and Montreal. "A reporter scrutinizes the smallest item on a police blotter. It may develop into a big news story. An airline executive must watch the little things which may spell the difference between profit and loss. When March for the airlines began, I started it again in a hurry." Janas is a graduate of both the University of California and the University of San Francisco. He worked as a reporter in Sacramento and San Francisco, and is a former chief deputy for the California Superintendent of Banks.

Fumigation of Soil Seen

As Increasing Farm Crops

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—Tripling or even quadrupling the yield of farm lands through soil fumigation was a possibility advanced at the 105th annual convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Through the use of tear gas—"chloropicrin"—two horticulturists of the Rhode Island agricultural experiment station, Dr. Frank L. Howard and Fred K. Crandall, reported the normal yield of tomatoes was increased as much as 37 per cent.

Soil fumigation at the rate of 200 pounds of chloropicrin to the acre increased the yield of No. 1 tomatoes 132 per cent in 1937; 378 per cent in 1938, and 246 per cent in 1939, the scientists reported.

They also found that the leaves exhibited less disease and the roots showed less injury from soil organisms in the treated areas.

Relations Between U. S. and Japan Are Reaching Possible Crisis Due to Tokyo Policies in China

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 8.—Relations between the United States and Japan are slowly reaching a point which may produce a crisis hardly anticipated or desired by the Japanese or American peoples.

The difficulties arise principally out of Japan's ambitions in China and the evident determination of the militarist party in Japan to disregard all previous understandings between the United States and Japan with respect to American interests in the Far East. But from the Japanese standpoint the problem is one of Japanese expansion into the Chinese market because the United States and other countries have insisted on erecting tariff walls to exclude Japanese-made products.

Thus far nothing is being done to ameliorate the situation, which, indeed, is being aggravated by speeches in the Japanese Parliament that offend America and speeches and proposals in the United States Senate that irritate the Japanese.

With all the outcry about American public opinion being in favor of maintaining peaceful relations with every country in the world, it is surprising how little attention is being paid to the slowly smoldering fires of discord and animosity which are being developed as between Japan and the United States.

The controversy has been handled thus far by the department of State through Ambassador Joseph Grew, a career diplomat who follows instructions and who makes speeches criticizing Japanese policy only when he is told to do so by the authorities here.

There is evidence that the liberals in Japan, though in a minority, are as much alarmed as the liberals in the United States over the poor state of Japanese-American relations. The question of what to do about it has been a subject of discussion in Tokyo and Washington by many persons who have long felt that Japan and the United States could, if they tried hard enough, reach an understanding with reference to Far Eastern policy. The subject is somewhat complicated by the partisans of China, many of whom are insisting that the United States apply an embargo against Japanese trade.

What seems to be the most practical suggestion yet is the appointment of a Japanese-American commission to be clothed with full powers of negotiating and all questions in dispute at present between Japan and the United States. To be effective, the Japanese commission must be composed of representatives of the Militarist party in Japan as well as the foreign office, for otherwise the whole problem is being permitted to reach emotional stages when actually there are economic factors which are susceptible of mutually satisfactory settlement. When two governments get nowhere through open attacks and critical speeches, they often find it advantageous to suspend the recriminations and sit down with experts at a round table to try to arrive at a workable formula. Japan and America and China have cooperated before, and the plan for economic and financial collaboration can be reestablished with a realization, of course, that Japan is being excluded by our own tariffs from this country and from many other countries in the world.

'Watching' the Wind Blow
 To see the wind, hold any flat, smooth surface having a straight edge (a straight-backed hacksaw is excellent for this purpose) against the wind, but inclined to the vertical, with the straight edge uppermost and leaning with the wind, says the United States weather bureau. Then sight along this straight upper edge toward a white object. If the wind is moderately strong one will see it pouring over the straight edge like water over a dam. This phenomenon is owing to irregular densities in the air which in turn cause irregular refractions of the transmitted light.

Forecasting a Revolution
 Jacques Cazotte, French journalist, sat with many friends at dinner in a Parisian mansion one cold winter's night in 1788. Talk turned to politics and before it was finished Cazotte predicted the French Revolution and indicated the fate of each of his fellows therein. They ridiculed him then, but every one of them died in the manner he predicted before and during the Terror. The French Revolution began with the storming of the Bastille by the Paris mob on July 14, 1789.

Legislature Proposes

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP)—Liberalization of home relief grants was proposed in the Legislature today despite continued protest of the proposed $396,700,000 state budget in which such costs form a major item.

Assemblyman Joseph A. Boccia, New York city Republican, introduced a bill to establish minimum weekly payments of $10 to individuals, $15 for married couples and $3 for each dependent, along with "adequate allowance for household expenses, special diet, medical care and clothing."

A spokesman for the state social welfare department said no minimum or maximum amount is now fixed, the allowance being based on the local welfare commissioner's checkup of the "case need."

He reported average monthly grants in December of $41.45 a family and $24.92 a person, as compared with the approximate

$60 and $40 which would be allowed under the Boccia proposal.

Other bills would: Extend the moratorium on mortgage foreclosure until July 1, 1945, and provide for amortization of payments of two and a half per cent of the mortgage principal.

(Assemblyman George F. Torsney, New York city Democrat.) Require municipalities to create an authority for issuing licenses for parades and meetings in a move to protect "civil liberties of speech, press and assembly."

(Senator Philip M. Kleinfield, Brooklyn Democrat.)

Make the registration year for motor vehicles June 1 to May 31. (Assemblyman Stanley C. Shaw, Ithaca Republican.)

Science Has Turbine to Rob Planes of Power Plant Threat

Invention Is Capable of Almost Immediate Generation and Runs on Oil

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—Science has a new turbine which promises to rob bombing planes of one of their most potent threats to big city life, which is destruction of electric power plants.

The turbine is a power plant operating on a new principle of directly generating electricity from fuel. It is easily placed in an underground bombproof shelter and is capable of starting almost instantaneous generation of electricity to replace regular power plants.

News of the turbine and its wartime possibilities was made public here today by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in a report by Adolphe Meyer of Zurich, Switzerland, in the journal Mechanical Engineering.

The engine is about a year old and the engineers described results of its successful use for emergency electric power in Neuchâtel, Switzerland. Its name is the Combustion Gas Turbine.

It operates on cheap oil. This fuel is fed in a continuous, blazing jet into sealed combustion chamber. The chamber fills with the same burned gases that usually go up the chimney. They are mainly nitrogen, carbon dioxide, a little water vapor and a little oxygen.

But they are very hot and try to expand in the combustion chamber. The only escape from there is through vents over the blades of a turbine wheel or rotor. The escaping gases travel very fast and drive the turbine at high speed. The turbine in turn directly turns an electric generator.

The burned gases finally pass out through a flue, like the exhaust of an automobile.

Loans May Be Had On Crop and Feed

Emergency crop and feed loans for 1940 are now available to farmers in all areas as part of the regular loan program of the Farm Credit Administration to enable farmers to file their applications early and arrange their 1940 program. Checks will be issued on approved applications when funds are required.

John J. McDermott, field supervisor for the emergency crop and feed loan section of the Farm Credit Administration, will take applications at the county agent's office, at 74 John street, in Kingston, on Tuesday, February 13, between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain them in any other source, including production credit associations, banks or other private concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money loaned will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs in preparing and cultivating his 1940 crops or in purchasing or producing feed for his livestock.

Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed or, in the case of loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock, a first lien on the livestock to be fed.

Stairway Danger Spots
Stairways can be treacherous danger spots if not planned on a proper scale. Twenty-three per cent of all home accidents occur on stairways and steps, according to the National Safety Council's annual statistical report. Where there is a corner in the stairway, safety can be maintained if no more than two steps are set in a 90-degree turn, and these allow for ample foot space. To divide the turn into three steps makes for unsafe footing and constitutes a safety hazard. In modernizing older homes, unsafe stairways should be either replaced or redesigned. Care should be exercised to assure that the new stairway is easy to ascend and descend and that curves and corners have sufficient foot space.

Parachutes Prove Value In Fighting Forest Fires

Parachute jumpers may be added to Uncle Sam's forest fire fighters in the West as a result of recent successful tests in which "smoke jumpers" dropped from airplanes to put out small fires starting in inaccessible back country areas.

The experiments by the forest service proved the idea both feasible and safe as a means of reaching fires in a short time after they are reported.

By motor, horseback, or on foot, fire crews may require 6 or 10 hours to reach a fire. Crews loaded by airplanes at any one of the 76 landing fields, may still require several hours to reach a fire. In this time a fire may spread over many acres. The parachute fire fighter, however, reaches the fire before it has had a chance to spread.

A new type of parachute and a newly designed suit were used. The parachute has a larger spread than ordinary chutes and its wide apron with two flaps permits the jumper to land approximately where he wishes. The chute also cuts descent from the 15 to 18 feet per second of the ordinary chute to about 12 feet per second. The specially designed suit protects the jumper. The helmet, steel mesh mask, ankle braces, and heavy gloves give further protection.

Strangely enough, the parachute jumpers found landings in thick stands of young trees 20 or 30 feet high so easy that they promptly called them "feather-bed landings."

In fighting fires, the airplane pilot and smoke jumper first drop a small test parachute loaded with a 10-pound sand bag. The pilot notes the wind drift from the test chute as he circles the area so that as he approaches the spot the second time, the jumper can leave the plane at the correct position. The pilot circles a third time and drops the tool kit and equipment by burlap parachute, the entire procedure taking only 5 or 10 minutes.

Some Good
Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—The old adage about the "ill wind" which doesn't do someone a little good works even on the nightly blackouts in warring European nations. The commerce department said today that exports of American flashlight batteries increased from $1,975,841 in 1938 to $3,379,608 in 1939, which was two-thirds over when the war began.

Finnish Relief Fund Now $713.50

Treasurer Harold V. Clayton, of the local fund for Finnish relief, has received additional contributions to the fund totaling $106, since the last published report on February 3, making a total to date of $713.50.

One of the contributions this week indicates that interest in the brave fight the people of this little northern nation against overwhelming odds is not confined to older years. Mr. Clayton received a contribution a day or so since, the envelope addressed in childish handwriting, and on opening it found $2 with the statement that it was from "Bobbie and Dickie" for the Finnish relief fund.

Mr. Clayton commented this morning that while there have been some fairly substantial contributions to the fund and the total is mounting upward, participation has not been as general as has been the case in some areas.

Contributors since the last report were:
Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Tongue, $25
Herzog Supply Co., 25

Council Holds Pension Meeting in Absence

At Tuesday's meeting of the common council the aldermen agreed to take no action toward changing the present police and fire pension systems in Kingston until an informal meeting was held with representatives of the police and fire departments.

This informal meeting will not be held, however, until Mayor C. J. Heiselman returns from Florida later in the month. Both the mayor and the corporation counsel will be invited by the council to meet with them when the pension question is discussed.

No action will be taken on the two local bills changing the present pension systems until after this informal meeting is held.

The police and firemen are planning to submit their side of the story in regard to the pension systems which the mayor has declared unsound, and will urge that the present systems remain unchanged.

Pie still seems to be the great American dessert, and with cherries alone, more than 50 million cherry pies are eaten annually in the United States.

No Charge Against Morello for Fatal Accident Tuesday

John G. Morello of Brooklyn, driver of the car involved in an accident at Wawarsing Tuesday afternoon, in which one man was fatally injured and two others received severe injuries, has been released following more complete investigation into the crash.

District Attorney N. LeVan Haver said this morning that his office did not contemplate any criminal action in the case as full investigation of the affair by Sergeant John Hopkins and Trooper John Metzger of the B. C. I. indicated that there had been no criminal negligence on the part of Morello in the operation of the car. It was storming at the time of the accident and the road was icy and slippery.

The district attorney said that possibly there might be a coroner's inquest in the case at a later date.

An autopsy performed Wednesday upon Robert Lee McGinn of Woodside, L. I., who was thrown from the car at the time of the accident and who died in the Veterans' Memorial Hospital, Ellenville, a few hours later, showed that there had been an extensive fracture at the base of the skull and also fracture of a number of ribs.

Look after the present and you will have a future.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Busy Stork

Corydon, Ind.—Mrs. Herschel Stepro and Mrs. James Miller, sisters, became mothers and aunts—on the same day and in the same house. Mrs. Stepro gave birth to a son, and Mrs. Miller to a daughter. They and their husbands live near here with the women's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wiseman.

Family Man

Kansas City—A landlord hailed a tenant into court on peace disturbance charges, complaining "this man has not worked for a year, has not paid his rent and has been noisy and abusive every night."

"He has a nice wife and two children," he said, "and they can stay, but I want him out."

"What do you say to that offer?" Judge J. E. Thomas asked the defendant.

The tenant shook his head. "Do I look like the kind of man who would desert his wife and children?" he asked.

He drew 10 days.

Mum's the Word

Salt Lake City—To be a good policeman's wife, don't gossip. Capt. E. A. Hedman advised the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Police Mutual Aid Society.

"Wives must be content with reading of crime and its solution in the newspaper and must keep gossip away from their husbands' jobs if they want him to be a success."

Knotty Problem

Marble Rock, Iowa—Jack Weise, 11, who wants to be a Boy Scout, got all tied up in this one.

Practicing knots, he tied himself so tightly to a chair he had to knock a telephone receiver off and summon aid to get loose.

He Tried, Anyway

Edwardsville, Ill.—Fire Chief Dennis Hentz was testifying in circuit court when the scream of the fire siren was heard. He fidgeted, faltered in his testimony. Understanding, Judge D. H. Mudge asked if he thought the firemen needed him. Hentz said yes. Court was adjourned. When the chief reached the fire, it was out.

Reports Hospital Fund

Ellenville, Feb. 8—Chairman R. A. Benson said this morning that $1,907 had been received thus far in the Veterans' Memorial Hospital drive.

Diophantus wrote 13 books on algebra in the fourth century.

More Effective Ways Produce Seedless Fruit

The technique of producing fruit from unpollinated flowers—known to scientists as parthenocarp—advanced another step when scientists of the United States department of agriculture found two new growth substances—aphthalene acetic acid and naphthalene acetamide—are much more effective as pollen substitutes than substances used as sprays in previous tests.

The experiments, conducted by the federal bureau of plant industry, renew interest in parthenocarpic fruits, which develop normally but produce no embryos, or seed. Bananas and navel oranges are good examples of parthenocarpic fruits.

Most of the previous work, and all with the two new substances, has been with the holly plant. With holly, the male and female flowers are borne on separate plants. Berries develop only on the female plant after fertilization by insect-borne pollen from the male plant. In the tests, conducted by Dr. F. E. Gardner and P. C. Marth, the female plants were sprayed with weak solutions of the substances and covered with glassine bags to protect against pollination.

Both greenhouse and outside holly plants were sprayed. Using an 0.01 per cent solution, the strongest of three solutions used, 85 to 98 per cent of the flowers sprayed set fruit. The naphthalene acetamide was slightly more effective than the aphthalene acetic acid.

In previous experiments with strawberries, and using indole butyric acid as the spray, Dr. Gardner and Mr. Marth had partial success in growing a set of parthenocarpic fruit. The embryos did not develop, but the hard seed coverings or "achenes" grew just the same, giving the parthenocarpic fruit much the same appearance as normal berries.

Production of parthenocarpic fruits—free from seeds—would be commercially desirable in some fruits such as tomatoes which do not have hard seed covering about the embryo. At present the chemicals are expensive, yet because of the low concentrations needed, the cost is not prohibitive.

Battleship Type of Steel Used in Building Trailers

As fast as a new material is developed these days for one purpose, it finds its way into a number of other industries where it proves to be of equal or even greater value. Recently it was discovered that one of the latest types of steel, intended for battleships, will probably cover more miles of highway than it will of ocean travel before the history of its existence has been completed.

The new steel has been selected for the building of battleships because by its use it is possible to save 25 per cent in the weight of the armor and increase the speed of the battleship another 25 per cent. It is found also that because of the decrease in weight, a saving of 20 per cent in fuel is effected.

Exactly this same steel is being used for a new series of trailers. Thus the metallurgist who invented this steel for war purposes has made a marked contribution to the efficiency of motor transport on the highways.

Proper Varnish Application

Care should be used in preparing and applying varnish. Never store varnish in a room where the temperature is usually low. When you pour it from the can, pour it carefully so that no air bubbles will form. Be sure that there is no dust present on the surface to be varnished and that a minimum of dust is in the room. Use a first-quality flat brush and dip it gently into the varnish so no air bubbles or froth may form. When the brush is not in use, preserve it by soaking in raw oil. Before using, however, work all oil possible from it and then clean it in turpentine and shake dry. When applying the varnish lay it on without brushing it out too much. If two coats are necessary, use a quick-drying, harder type for the first coat than you use for the latter. Two coats of the same type are frequently used, however, with good results.

BEAUTY CARDS STACKED BY DEBS?

Ruth Allen (above), chairman of the Boston Models' Guild, charged debutante models were 'stacking the cards' for the forthcoming glamor contest between debs and professional models. She said debs set the price of admission so high only the wealthy could afford to attend and applaud their choice. Debs, she said, will model gowns from the best shops, while the pros were left to wear their own, and might even have to wear sarongs.

THRIFT....

SHORTLY we will celebrate the anniversary of the birthday of George Washington, the father of our country. He was the outstanding man of his time... but there were others, too, who had much to do with the moulding of this country. Among his contemporaries was Benjamin Franklin, author, publisher, statesman, signer of the Declaration of Independence.

"Poor Richard's Almanack" is the most widely known of Franklin's writings. Read this homely wisdom, an excerpt from the preface of the Almanack for 1758:

"... stick to it steadily, and you will see great effects, for constant dropping wears away stones, and by diligence and patience the mouse ate in two the cable; and little strokes fell great oaks. . . ."

Were Franklin alive today he might say these words about the Daily Savings Plan. Because, little by little, this is a way by which you may have the gas and electric appliances for your home that you have always wanted.

THE DAILY SAVINGS PLAN

was expressly designed for thrifty families with limited incomes. For a few nickels a day you may have the appliances of your choice—a refrigerator, an up-to-the-minute gas range or an automatic water heater—paying for them as you use them, by saving nickels in a savings bank attached to the appliance.

ADVENTURES OF DOLLY, THE PWA MARE

Dolly, a 25-year-old brown mare of the PWA sanitary division at Boston, Mass., is near-sighted in her old age, so when a harmless piece of paper blew past her at a Boston dock she shied. She fell 40 feet into a barge. Unhurt, here she is being lifted back to terra firma, a bit undignified, perhaps, but showing nevertheless—something of the form of an Aintree steeplechaser in midair.

WEST HURLEY

West Hurley, Feb. 7.—The play, "Aunt Minnie from Minnesota," will be presented at the M. E. Church hall on Thursday evening, February 8, at 8 o'clock. The play is given under the auspices of the Epworth League.

Students trying their regents preliminary examinations at Kingston High School were Harriet Emig, Mary Dodd, Nellie Robinson, Eleanor Vredenburg, Joan Longendyke, Phyllis Ostrander, Judson Beatty and Donald Van Wagenen. They all passed with an average of over 90 per cent.

The pupils of the eighth grade went to the movies recently with their teacher, Ernest Myer of Hurley. After the movies they were taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Myer and given a surprise party in honor of Harriet Emig's birthday. Refreshments were served and a cake was baked by Mrs. Myer. It had 13 candles on it. The children enjoyed a delightful evening. They were accompanied by Mrs. William Emig.

Patsy Hogan's many friends are glad to see her back in school again after being confined to her home with a severe cold.

The evening of games sponsored by the Co-operative School Club was a great success. The money will be used for hot soup and cocoa for the school children.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Every recently spent a day in New York city and New Jersey.

The Co-operative School Club are having a Valentine party at the school house Tuesday evening, February 13, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. John Winninger are expected back within a few days after spending several weeks in Brooklyn.

William Boice is ill in Florida. Muriel Edwards was a recent guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Berry.

The Epworth League held a social evening at the church hall Friday, February 2. The Epworth League will meet every Thursday at 7:30 o'clock hereafter.

Mrs. A. Schenk visited with her sister, Mrs. G. A. Nussbaum, for a few days. Mrs. Schenk, formerly of Hurley, is now a resident of New York.

Rancher's Name Serves Time

C. G. Peterson, California rancher, has his car back after it was stolen and not recovered for seven months, but he was glad he did not acquire the record of the temporary illegal owner. Peterson's name—but not himself—served a 75-day term in Alameda county jail in Oakland on a drunken driving charge. Oakland officers arrested the auto thief. He presented Peterson's operator's license—which he had found in the car—and was jailed and sentenced in Peterson's name. The car was impounded in a garage and kept there until police checked and found it had been stolen.

Wounded

Two-month old Geary Guck (above) was wounded in the hand and Chief of Police E. J. McAlpine of South St. Paul, Minn., said the babe's grandfather, Michael Sablak, fired a shotgun at the infant and his grandmother as they alighted from a car.

Chickery Shows 1,500 'Peepers'

It may be winter outside but it is summer all the year 'round at the distributing plant of the Kerr Chickeries, Inc., at the corner of Washington and Hurley avenues, where every day some 1,500 newly hatched chicks are shown in the display room.

The distributing plant has been located in Kingston since 1930 and handles yearly some 125,000 chicks. The main hatchery is located at Frenchtown, N. J. The concern also has hatcheries in various parts of the country and yearly hatch from 5½ to 6 million chicks.

At the distributing plant here it was said that the concern hatches chicks all the year round, and sales of the newly hatched chicks are not limited to any one season of the year.

Six of the standard brands of chicks are hatched.

The plant here has a show and display room capable of accommodating some 5,000 chicks, and every day in the year there is an average of 1,500 chicks on display.

BLOOD RUNS COLD

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Adrienne Wells accuses Kincaid of murdering Joan Kent. News comes that Lathrop and his wife are in the hospital.

Chapter 21

A Woman Suspected

ON THE way upstairs I had a strong hunch that all wasn't well. Of course, I thought, if Tim Lathrop were the murderer, then obviously as long as he was in the hospital the house was safe. If he wasn't the one, then anything might happen. While I walked up the steps to the second floor I counted them. It was an old trick of mine, but when I counted thirteen I must admit I shivered. Suspicion wasn't one of my weak points, but at that moment in the dimly lighted hall I felt pretty uneasy. And I kept thinking I heard whispers. It frightened me at first, but I heaved a sigh of relief. It was Mary Ann and Norton talking together in the hall outside of her door. I pretended I didn't see them and walked into my apartment, whistling.

By the dim light from the bathroom I had to screw the electric light bulbs into the fixture in the ceiling. And the room was dark except for that thin thread of light. So it was either nervousness or because the chair was wobbly that made me drop one of the bulbs as I tried to reach upward. The explosion was terrific. I almost collapsed, it scared me so badly. And even before I could get off the chair I could hear Mrs. Evans rushing down the hall, shouting for the police. She was followed by Norton. Then Mr. Kimball and Ishi came upstairs and all four of them found me crouched on the chair in the dark. I was almost hysterical.

"Who did you shoot?" Mrs. Evans screamed from the doorway, and the dog ran into the room and jumped up at me, barking madly.

"No one," I snapped. "I dropped an electric light bulb."

I could hear Mr. Kimball laugh with relief.

"I don't believe it," Mrs. Evans said, advancing. "What are you doing here in the dark? Tell me that."

I didn't bother to answer her. By that time Mr. Kimball had Ishi screw the bulbs in the sockets and the room was lighted. He and Ishi left and so did Norton. On the way out he said, "Gave me quite a scare, Blondie."

Mrs. Evans lingered in the doorway, obviously distrustful. "The going-on in this house are peculiar, I must say, and artists have a funny way of living." With that witticism she departed and the dog followed her, waving his tail disdainfully. Then Patrick came up with a basket of wood. I was glad to have him for company as he built the fire.

I'd intended going to bed early, but the excitement left me thoroughly awake and I thought Dirk might be back, so I settled down with a book by the fire. My chair was facing the door. But I found myself reading a sentence or two, then turning to peer over my shoulder at the fire escape.

"It's nonsense to be so fidgety," I told myself firmly. So I fidgeted. After what happened last night I wouldn't have felt safe in a cell. I walked restlessly around the room, took a drink of water, powdered my nose, then sat down again to look out at the fire escape.

A Large Surprise

THEN I thought of the newspapers. I'd brought Dirk's bundle of them upstairs with me and they were lying on the chair with my coat and purse. So I curled up again in the chair by the fireplace where I could see the door and the fire escape and looked through the papers. That the account of the murder would be well buried I fully expected. Where I come from in Ohio a murder is generously given all of page 1, but I'd finally gotten accustomed to seeing sudden and violent death relegated to the depths of the New York papers unless the person was socially prominent or had an euphonious name.

I had a large surprise. The story of Joan Kent's death was on the first page of all three of the papers Dirk had bought. The reason for it was even more surprising.

Twenty-two years ago Joan's father, Warner Kent, an attorney, was mysteriously shot to death. It was curious that the father and the daughter should both die by violence.

And the story of Warner Kent's death was strange. In March, 1914, he was found with a bullet hole in his head and a revolver lying a few feet away in his private office in Wall Street. The case was officially closed as suicide but rumors persisted. A socially prominent girl was supposed to have been closeted with him for two hours the afternoon of his death and the gossip at the time was that she was madly in love with him.

All of this happened when Joan was two or three years old. Was it coincidence, I wondered, or could her death be linked with her father's?

The story the papers carried of Joan's death held no surprises until I came to the bottom of the column. An arrest was to be made shortly. A woman. As far as I knew I was the only woman the Sergeant suspected. He got interested in others, but he seemed always to come back to me.

The account was continued to page 3. I was so excited that I kept dropping pages of the paper until I found the rest of the story. And there, much to my surprise, I found a fairly concise report of Sergeant Long's interviews with the people in the house. And—more amazing—there was an old photograph of me when I won a prize for a painting at a Paris exhibition. So it took, not eight years of hard work, but a murder to get publicity. I felt a little grim about that.

A soft knock sounded at the door and I jumped up. It took all of my courage to cross the room and open that door after Dirk's warning. Much to my relief it was Mary Ann Rogers. She was wrapped up in a heavy blue bathrobe over her green frock with a wool scarf knotted at her throat.

"I look a fright, I know," she smiled, "but it's so cold in our place. Do you mind if I come in for a little while, if you aren't going to bed, of course? It's pretty late," she added, then whirled around quickly as Richard MacDonald came up the stairway. She turned back to me with a breathless laugh. "I'll be with you in a minute," she said shrilly. "I forgot something."

And then she followed Richard down the hall. I could hear the murmur of their voices and I was pretty curious, but when she came back in a minute or two she said nothing about it. I told her I was delighted to have company, and then we pulled our chairs up close to the fireplace.

Mary Ann leaned back in the chair, stretching her slim legs comfortably before her on the stool. She lighted a cigarette, smoking thoughtfully. It was warm and pleasant in the room and the fire was drawing beautifully. I turned out all of the lights except the small one on the wall over the fireplace.

"Nervous As A Cat"

"YOU know," she bent forward unexpectedly, "this is getting on my nerves. I've been sitting around all afternoon and evening and I'm as nervous as a cat, and worried, too. Adrienne is in there crying all of the time."

I didn't know what to say, so I just murmured something non-committal.

"I can't make her stop. It isn't very cheerful," she added, with a short laugh.

I thought of the paper. "The Sergeant isn't going to arrest her, is he? The papers said it was a woman that was suspected."

It seemed to me that she started, but it may have been my imagination.

"What seems to be the matter with her?" I asked.

Mary Ann wrinkled her forehead. "I don't know," she said slowly, "except that she's terribly upset. I don't think the Sergeant has threatened to arrest her. It's just that her name was in the evening paper." She paused.

I got up and went over to the table for a pack of cigarettes. "All of our names were in," I said.

Mary Ann nodded slowly. "I know, but when she saw hers she was wild."

I curled up in the chair again. "Well, it isn't the pleasantest thing to be mixed up in."

For a moment she was silent. "She's afraid of something," she said suddenly in a taut voice. "I don't know what it is. I can't figure her out at all."

"She was upstairs with Mr. Whitefield last night, you know."

She finally told me. But it isn't that. At least I think it's something else that's worrying her. She's huddled in a chair by the window and all she does is cry. She won't even talk. "It makes me nervous. And she's as pale as a ghost."

Mary Ann's face was pale and drawn and the rouge on her round cheeks stood out in two bright spots.

"I took a lease on the apartment we're in now," she said unexpectedly, "and then I found I couldn't afford it alone when the dress shop needed me only half days. So I told Mr. Kimball and he said that a girl had been trying to get an apartment in the house. He suggested that she share mine. It was the only way out for me. I told him to have her come to see me. It was Adrienne. I think she knew Harry Kincaid and wanted to live here on account of him. She's been here four months now and I still don't know anything about her."

Then she added, irrelevantly, "Your friend, Mr. Kent, is very nice."

I suppressed a smile. Dirk, I gathered, had made an impression. Before I could answer there was a terrific crash from the stairway. We jumped to our feet.

I thought the whole house had collapsed.

Mary Ann gripped my hand and we stood motionless, too startled to move.

"Murder!"

The voice was Mrs. Evans' from somewhere in the hall.

Somehow, to hear her shriek was reassuring. She was such an idiot and spent so much time screaming that I imagined nothing serious had happened. However, I opened the door with due caution and we peered out into the hall.

The real proof of a charitable heart is to keep on giving while the need lasts without the spur of a solicitor's preaching.

Girl—Why do you call your boy friend "Pilgrim"?

Friend—Because every time he calls he makes a little progress.

The wife who believes in her husband is a big aid to him. It helps him to believe in himself.

This is the "simple life" with a vengeance.

Neighbor—I suppose John is taking life easy?

Woman (who was carrying an armful of wood)—Yes, John has only two regrets in life. One is that he has to wake up to eat, and the other is that he has to quit eating to sleep.

Every time a mother finds out her daughter has a date with a fellow who doesn't rate so well with the parents, a romance is nipped in the bud by the inclusion of onions on the supper menu.

Man—Your wife says she asks only for pin money.

Friend—Yes, but the first pin she wanted had 12 diamonds in it.

Philosophy is the realization that weeds kept mowed to the proper height make a fairly good looking lawn.

Friend—What did your boss say when you asked him for a raise?

Man—He was just like a lamb.

Friend—What did he say?

Man—Baa.

New Parachute Device

Tested for Air Liners

A method of dropping the passengers of an air liner like bombs and letting them float to earth by parachutes is being perfected by an officer of the Italian air force.

Believing that the parachute should be an integral part of air passenger transportation, and that its use in an emergency should be controlled by the pilot, one Lieutenant-Colonel Freri has devised a means of placing the entire responsibility of landing passengers by parachutes within the pilot's hands.

Safety hooks, worked by an electric mechanism, hold the seats and the entire cabin containing the passengers. If a desperate situation arises, the pilot orders his assistants to supply passengers with parachutes and put them on. By moving a lever he releases the passengers from the cabin, entrusting their lives to the parachutes.

The invention is now being tested in Italy and is expected shortly to become standard equipment on all Italian passenger liners.

Carrageen, a sea weed used in making jellies for invalids, takes its name from the town of that name near Waterford, Ireland. It is also known as Irish Moss.

It is better to "talk shop" than to talk a lot of other things which we do in our spare time.

School Teacher—Do you think paper can be used effectively to keep people warm?

Thomas—I should say so! The last report card I took home kept the family hot for a week.

Were you ever "surveyed" by one of the Gallup surveyors? Did you ever see anyone who had been "seen" by a Gallup? Or who had seen someone who said he had heard of a man who had been interviewed on these lengthy questions?

Botany Teacher—Where do we find mangoes?

Pupil—Where woman goes.

Patriotic And Colonial Themes Give Hostesses Plenty Of Scope

A George Washington punch and some hatchet-sandwiches make an inviting repast.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington's birthday could be just the occasion to give that Mother's Party at the school, to observe the Literary Club's Guest Day or—could be—just the time for a Washington's birthday get-together.

The entertainment, decorations, refreshments and costumes should be based on Colonial motifs so far as possible. And that's the day of days, too, to have plenty of flags about.

For refreshments at the average party—fancy sandwiches (in vast numbers), a hot or cold beverage (both, if you can serve them), small cakes and confections, a red sherbet—clove, raspberry, cherry or strawberry—would make it even more of a party.

The centerpiece on the serving table should be extra special. Here's one that makes a fine patriotic decoration: Arrange red flowers (carnations are fine) in a holder in a deep bowl. Bunch them close together with rubber bands fastened around the stems close to the blossoms. Arrange white flowers around the red ones, then blue ones around those. Since it often is difficult to get blue flowers at this season, you could substitute a blue paper frill, nosegay fashion. Light the table with tall white tapers set in Colonial glass or silver holders. Of course you can use colored candles, but

GEORGE WASHINGTON PUNCH

1 quart grape juice
2 cups cherry juice (from No. 2½ can red pitted cherries; save drained cherries for pie)
1 teaspoon lime-flavored gelatin
1 cup water
1 pint plain soda water
1 quart ginger ale
Dissolve gelatin in water that has been heated to boiling. Cool. Add to fruit juices. Sugar may be added if desired. Serve from large punch bowl with plenty of ice, adding soda and ginger ale just before serving.

Hatchet-shaped sandwiches with minced ham and horseradish filling may be served as an accompaniment, as well as marsh-mallows dipped in ground pistachio nuts.

white ones seem daintier on a table where food is being served.

There should be trays of fancy sandwiches on the table—these and others equally as good tasting but less troublesome to make, are passed to the guests by girls in Colonial dresses.

Try this FANCY OPEN SANDWICH idea: Cut shield shapes from thinly cut white bread (paper patterns will do it). Spread white cream cheese blended with soft butter (creamed, never melted) on the shields. Stripe the shields with pimiento strips. Cover er with waxed paper and a damp cloth and keep in a cool place until serving time. Keep all the preserves, as a matter of fact, well covered and chilled. You also can make shields of white cake baked in thin layers. Cut into shields, frost them with white icing and design stars and stripes on them with colored gum drops.

Here is a cake suggestion that helps dress up the serving table. Bake 2 large sheets of cake (about 1½ inches thick when baked). Frost tops and sides with white icing. Make stripes of red tinted icing and stars from gum drops (cut into shape with scissors that have been dipped frequently into warm water to prevent sticking). Carefully place the frosted cakes onto shallow serving dishes. Cut into 1½ inch squares. Place at either end of the table. These are decorative as well as delicious.

Raspberry ice served from a large crystal bowl looks delicious on the table and is especially refreshing to the palate.

Individual candy favors, or candy Colonial hats, small "M" Verrons, or whatever other favors your shop offers, can be piled on a side table in the dining room. The guests take them as they leave the party.

last Wednesday netted about $50 for Ellenville Hospital.

Mrs. George Decker and son and Mrs. Ira Decker spent last Friday afternoon in Ellenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Green were Kingston visitors Monday.

The Rondout Valley Men's Glee Club will present a program of sacred music in the Kerhonkson Methodist Church Sunday, February 11, at 7:30 p. m. Everyone is invited.

An amateur contest will be held in Kerhonkson fire hall February 22 at 8 p. m. Winners of the contest will receive auditions over station WKNY and cash prizes.

test may secure details and entry blanks by writing to Leon Proper, Kerhonkson, before February 15.

World Day of Prayer At Presbyterian Church

A world day of prayer, which was first observed in 1927, will be held on Friday at 3 o'clock in the Rondout Presbyterian Church, and all women of the city and vicinity are invited to attend the service.

As far back as 1887, Presbyterian women in the United States came together to pray for home missions. Interest in the Day of Prayer increased and in the early nineties the foreign mission forces chose a day for united prayer.

In 1920, both in this country and Canada, church women of all denominations united in prayer, the first Friday in Lent being selected as "The Day of Prayer for Missions."

Then, in numberless places around the world, the thought of a day of prayer spread until, at the request of many far away friends, a World Day of Prayer was first observed in 1927. In 1936 Christians of more than 50 countries kept the day together and each year the number uniting increases.

Father Paul Dies At Graymoor; Was Founder of Church

Mission Church of the Holy Cross, on Pine Grove avenue, and its first altar was his gift in memory of his father.

In 1895, Father Watison was called from St. John's to go to Omaha to become the head of the Associate Mission there, remaining there for three years. Feeling called to what is known as the Religious Life, after much prayer and long consideration, Father Watison left Omaha in 1898 and settled near Garrison, calling the place of the new venture "Graymoor," and the society, "The Society of the Atonement." There, in 1899, the new house was dedicated.

After some years as a Friar of the Atonement, Father Paul James Francis (which was his name in religion) felt his position in the Episcopal Church to have become untenable, and he and those associated with him in the society made their submission to the authority of the Roman Catholic Church. At that time, he was the only priest in the society, there was with him a lay brother, and in the convent for women associated with the friars was a small community of Sisters. They were received into the Roman Church as a community, and their later history has shown marked development and strong growth.

Industrial Home of Kingston Submits Annual Statements

A. H. Chambers and Mrs. Allen L. Hanstein.

We feel deeply the death of Mrs. William H. Van Etten. Her cheerful nature and willingness to serve was an inspiration to all. The "Home" has indeed sustained a great loss in her death.

At the beginning of the year, the members of the board were organized in standing committees. Also a tentative budget was compiled. In order to accomplish this it was necessary to revise the constitution. The number of board members was also increased from 17 to 25.

We wish to thank the medical staff, dentist, specialist and optometrist who have given their services so generously this past year. We also wish to thank Dr. Keator for his interest in our older boys.

The year began with 23 children. We received 17 and discharged 7 to parents or relatives and closed the year with 33 children in the "Home."

During the year arts and crafts instructions and materials has opened a new field of interest to the children. They are learning to use their hands and creative ability and are responding enthusiastically to these new achievements. Since the cold weather a portion of the grounds has been prepared and flooded. This gives the children a pond on which to skate and slide. Some of the boys and girls have learned to skate well. The Junior League of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church invited 16 of our children to join their mission group, which meets every Thursday throughout the year. They are included in all the activities and this is a most helpful experience for them. The oldest six girls joined the junior choir and enjoy singing.

We are so glad of this opportunity to thank the active friends who responded so understandingly to our appeal. At present 18 children are being taken care of by these outside friends who provide clothing, entertainment and social contact. We deeply appreciate the interest and valuable assistance of these active friends.

For the first time we have been able to send our older boys to scout and the Y. M. C. A. camps through the generosity of friends who are sponsoring our boy scouts.

We regret the death of F. A. Waters, who has been for many years a valued trustee of the "Home."

After 35 years of use it was necessary to replace our furnace. We are hoping our new one will last even longer. We thank the trustees who gave so willingly of their time in looking after this work. Their advice and help were invaluable.

We thank all the friends in Kingston and the county for their gifts of canned fruit, vegetables, jellies, jams and frozen foods. We acknowledge the generosity of the Binnewater Ice Co. in supplying us with ice free of charge. This marks the 36th year of their kindness. We also thank the Kingston, Benedictine, Tuberculosis Hospitals and the City Laboratory for their cooperation during the year.

The Shriner's Ball has come to mean a great deal to the "Home." The generous check received from the proceeds is most welcome. We are indeed grateful. We also appreciate the many further kindnesses the members of the association have shown throughout the year.

On August 21 the paid firemen assisted by their wives, had their annual picnic for the children. The drive over the beautiful Minnewaska Trail was enjoyed. A stop was made at a pleasant spot and the firemen treated the children to ice cream which they carried along in one of the cars. Returning to Foothill Park, the tables were attractively set, with tempting foods and favors for the children. The afternoon was spent playing games in the park, and the children returned home filled, not only with happiness, but with all the good refreshments provided for them by the firemen. Each summer the children look forward to the picnic with their firemen friends, and we truly thank them for their continued interest and kindness.

The Masons carried their regular visit to the "Home" Christmas Day bringing each youngster gifts. During their stay the children gave a pageant of the Manger scene with Joseph, Mary and the Babe. The girls were dressed to represent angels and sang carols. It had not been rehearsed, but was acted out naturally and simply as the children know the story and gave a very appealing impression. We are indeed thankful for the kindness shown each year by the Masons to the children of the "Home."

The fireworks provided through the thoughtfulness of the Rotary Club were enjoyed by the children on the Fourth of July and we thank them. We gratefully acknowledge the gift at Christmas time of a moving picture projector. This will prove a source of pleasure and instruction to the children for many years. Each time it is used it will be a reminder to the kindness of their friends of the Rotary Club.

The T. T. Class of the St. James M. E. Church is ever mindful of the children. We thank them for their donations during the year and the supper picnic given on the "Home" grounds in the summer. This in itself represents a great deal of time and consideration.

There are many other generous friends who have provided delightful recreations for the children and we want to sincerely thank all in the following list:

The many attractive arrangements in the "Home" are indicative of her thoughtful understanding of the needs of the children. In return she has the affection of them all.

Little children have an appeal for everyone. As you read this report we hope you will become interested in helping our "Home" children to grow up to be good citizens.

Respectfully submitted,
JANE M. INGALLS.

The Superintendent's Report

During the past year more children have knocked at our door than it was possible to care for, but the spirit of devotion to the cause of the needy child has ever inspired our work.

Questions of policies and technique had to be adjusted. Changes in ideas and methods have taken place in our way of living to bring a keener understanding of the emotional and physical needs to the child of today and to the many problems and perplexities created by this New Industrial Era.

At the end of 1939 we had 33 children under care, among them not a single orphan, seven of the children had either a father or a mother; and 26 came from broken-up homes, with both parents living. In most cases there was economic insecurity at home, not always straight poverty but difficult living; friction between parents; inability to supply the most common needs for a fairly happy childhood.

The separation from living parents is a most crucial point in a child's life. It can bring personality problems and injuries to the whole being. All children placed in a home have gone through severe upheavals and bring emotional scars. They must reorient themselves in their personal lives and in their relationship to their parents, who seemed to have rejected them. They had found difficulties in their home environments and they are finding even more difficulties in their new environment. While this struggle goes on these children have inner needs and demands not experienced by ordinary children. These needs must be carefully considered if we want normal development, and the progressive institution must offer treatment facilities which the old-fashioned temporary children's shelter never dreamed of.

Our children need physical corrections, habit training, reorientation and rehabilitation. They must form new loyalties, and find new strength in a growing independence. In full consciousness of those challenging problems, we believe that we have given our children excellent physical care, understanding counsel and a definite religious program.

A great help in institution methods of treatment are group activities and teamwork. The idea of a common good. Earning, spending, saving money, supervised play-grounds and well directed recreation.

Other resources and opportunities for self expression were lessons in music, dancing, swimming, cooking and gardening. Campfires, masquerades, dramatics and choir singing.

Handcraft work opened new fields and brought out many aptitudes. Selling of magazines, of self-made articles and of products from the children's garden and kitchen developed enterprise and self determination.

The limited number of choices in institutional living, usually a great drawback, were successfully overcome by "active friends," who were tireless in taking 18 children on real shopping trips to clothing stores, where the youngsters could express their individual desires. The same "active friends" have offered opportunities where children can achieve recognition and acceptance in the community, and experience the social relationships of a normal child.

Strong leadership of scoutmasters, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. club directors helped in a personality development. And last but not least, credit is due to our staff members, who, with parental indulgence, made possible a desired flexible program.

We feel that our happy home atmosphere is due in large part to the gentle spirit which comes flowing into our midst from all around.

It was advisable to practice the strictest economy during the last year. For this reason some of the additions, improvements to buildings, equipment and playgrounds, which were necessary, could not be made. But we have carried out our decision to keep children beyond the age of 12, and our real happiness came from wholesome recreation and harmonious living.

We need the continued interest and support of old friends and the inspiration of new ones. We believe in our work and we know that our hopes for better service to our needy children will be realized, though days of patience and waiting lie ahead.

MARGARET SCHOLTZ,
Superintendent.

Music Society Gives Two-Piano Program

Members of the Musical Society of Kingston enjoyed a two-piano program Wednesday evening at the regular monthly meeting held at the home of Mrs. Harry P. Dodge, 63 Green street. The program was in charge of Mrs. Bertrand B. Bishop and Mrs. Warren Ingalsbe.

A short paper on "The Growth of Two-Piano Art" was given by Mrs. Clyde E. Wonderly. Mrs. Wonderly gave the history of two-piano playing tracing its development from Bach to the modern use of two pianos in orchestras today. She gave the resources from which two piano playing was developed, and some of the essential factors in execution.

The program of six two-piano numbers followed the talk by Mrs. Wonderly. The numbers were announced by Mrs. Bishop and included "Bourée" from the third suite for cello by Bach played by Mrs. Raymond H. Rignall and Mrs. John L. MacKinnon; "Kamemori Ostrow" by Rubenstein played by the Misses Jane and Ethel Mauterstock; "Malaguena" by Secuona, played by Mrs. Lester F. Decker and Mrs. Walter T. Tremper; "Jazz Study" by Edward Hill, played by Mrs. Lloyd R. LeFever and Mrs. Bertrand B. Bishop; "Le Matin" by Chaminade played by Miss Margaret Howe and Mrs. Maurice W. Venno; and "Danse Macabre" by Saint-Saëns played by Mrs. Harry P. Dodge and Mrs. William S. Eltinge.

In the middle of the piano program Mrs. Warren Ingalsbe sang two vocal selections, "Song of Morning" by Bruno Huhn and "L'Envoi" by Ernest Charles. She was accompanied by Mrs. Walter T. Tremper.

The program was preceded by a short business meeting at which the president, Mrs. Lloyd R. LeFever, announced the nominating committee for the coming year, of which Mrs. A. Noble Graham is the chairman, assisted by Mrs. Clyde E. Wonderly and Mrs. LeRoy Wood. It was also announced that the March meeting has been changed from March 6 to March 13 and will be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel instead of at the home of Miss Lucinda Merritt. At this meeting the story of the history of Kingston will be presented in music and dance and will be in charge of Mrs. Clarence Wolfenstein and Mrs. Raymond R. Gross. Members have been requested to notify the home hostess of further meetings if they are unable to attend a meeting. The first rehearsal of the Spross chorus for the open meeting in April will be held February 28 at the home of Mrs. John L. MacKinnon on Manor avenue.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

Many problems are difficult to answer definitely because their answers depend upon the customs of an individual community. An example of what I mean is the problem in this letter: "We have a son of 18 who wants to invite his friends to an afternoon cocktail party here at home. Cocktails in this case means fruit punch and chocolate. We are perfectly willing to let him give this party but I'm wondering whether he is right in believing it correct for him alone to invite the girls to my house."

In New York, a boy of 18 always sends out his own invitations. In other words, his name on a card beneath his mother's would make him ridiculous. It is taken for granted that although his mother is not hostess, she will be there. The invitations would properly be written on your son's visiting cards: Cocktails, 5 to 7 o'clock Saturday, February 10. If you want to make it plain that cocktails are to be soft ones, he could put this word in quotations, and if invitations sent by young men are not customary in your community, your own visiting card (with no writing on it) could be enclosed to any girl he doesn't know well, if he thinks it necessary to assure her that you will be present.

Who Suggests Going?

Dear Mrs. Post: In a restaurant, does a hostess or her guest suggest leaving?

Answer: If they are going to a theatre or concert, etc., the hostess looks at her watch, or asks the time. If someone else asks, "Is it time to go?" she answers, "It is," or else, "Not yet—it's only a quarter past two." Then later, "I think we'd better be going. When they are not going anywhere afterwards one of the guests usually makes the move. But there is no rule that the guests must all go first as there is of course in the hostess's own house, or anywhere except in a restaurant.

An Office Problem

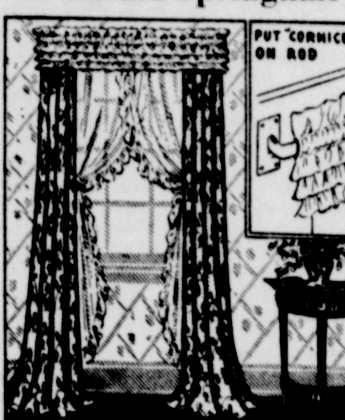

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been with my employer for more than five years, and during that time have spoken to his wife quite often. Most of our conversations have been on the telephone. I'm beginning to feel that it sounds a bit self-important to announce myself as "Miss Blank from the office," and think that perhaps I should begin to say "Mary Blank." What is your feeling about this?

Answer: Unless you know the wife very well out of the office and unless out of the office she calls you Mary, you should continue to use the business form: "This is Miss Blank."

Bowes Inspects His Bees

Daniel Bowes, Ellenville beekeeper for the last 57 years, is shown at left inspecting "brood tray" and some of his bees. Roosters which patrol the bee-yard in search of dead insects are in center. At right Mr. Bowes points to hive which is protected from winter weather by drum and insulated with leaves.

Ellenville Keeper of Bees
Says They're Good Natured

Ellenville, Feb. 8.—"Bees are sociable and good-natured when you understand them—not mean little cusses that want to sting everyone," said Daniel Bowes of Ellenville, today.

And Mr. Bowes knows plenty about bees, because he has been handling them for the last 57 years.

"I kept at least one 'skip' or hive, since I was 14 years old," continued the 74-year-old expert. "When I was just a young blade a swarm settled on a maple tree in front of our house. Ma said to leave them alone or I'd get stung to death. But I didn't listen to her and when she went in the house, I got busy, 'smoked' them and put the colony in a home-made hive I had made."

"Ma was right about getting stung, however, and I got about a dozen bumps before I caught the bees. I've been a beekeeper ever since."

He exploded the fallacy that bees sting frequently and at little provocation.

"Since stinging means death to the bee, he doesn't want to 'commit suicide' unless he thinks he is in mortal danger," continued Mr. Bowes. The barbed stinger penetrates deeply and the bee is literally pulled apart when torn from his victim.

Bees do not hibernate, but are active in the hive on even coldest days and move from cell to cell, feeding on stored honey.

On exceptional winter days when the temperature is well above freezing, a few bees of any hive will leave their home for brief periods to buzz around their "doorstep" in warm rays of the sun, according to Bowes.

He says there are thousands of bees in each colony and most beekeepers house them in a wooden "hive" about two feet long and 18 by 10 inches wide. This has a moveable top and the entire hive is telescoped by a protective outer covering—some keepers use old oil drums with one and removed for the hive cover.

The apiary, or collection of colonies, is usually placed on a slope which acts as a "windbreak" in severe weather. The front of the hive faces southeast to get as much sun as possible in winter.

Rows of "brood frames"—each having a thin sheet of wax—are inserted vertically into slots of the hive. Each wax sheet is stamped out in a honey-comb pattern and bees use this as a foundation in building their geometrical perfect cells.

Fresh frames are inserted in the spring and workers begin their countless trips to blossoms for nectar which is stored in cells. Wax is secreted from ventricles, or small holes, on abdomen of the bee and is used for the cellular labyrinth which serves as a storehouse for honey and "nests" for the young, or larvae.

Comb-building progresses rapidly when bees are "ripening" nectar; it is mixed with a secretion which causes chemical change of nectar to honey.

Mr. Bowes says that each colony has a single large "queen" which, after a single mating, which takes place in flight, lays thousands of fertile eggs over periods varying from one to four years.

When a queen bee's egg-laying slumps, a young female is groomed for "coronation" by indulgent workers who feed the queen-to-be heavily until she assumes huge size. Then the old queen is executed and the corpse is rudely pushed out the front door to be gobbled up by some lucky bird.

Bees love their homes, but oc-asionally a colony will "swarm" and leave their man-made hive to go back to nature.

"Where the queen goes, the colony goes," said Bowes, "and 'absconding' is often prevented by clipping the queen bee's wings."

The queen deposits a single egg to a cell. Tiny larvae hatch and are carefully fed and cared for by devoted "nursemaids." After several days feeding, the larva spins a cocoon and metamorphosis begins during which the grub is changed to a bluish-white baby bee with tiny pellicles, or rudimentary wings. The youngster begins to eat again and in a short time reaches full size.

After maturity of the new brood, smaller trays are inserted in the hive and in this way the beekeeper collects the honey.

The average life of the worker, or female, is about three months, but variations of blossoming, amount of available nectar and climatic conditions will proportionally lengthen or shorten the bee's life.

The drone, or male, loafs around all the time. Every now and then, however, workers get tired of the fat drones and kick the idlers out to die for lack of food and shelter.

He says bees don't get chummy with their keeper and will sting him as readily as they will a stranger—if startled or frightened by careless handling. For this reason, sensible beekeepers always wear heavy gloves and face nets when working around the hives.

Bowes says the old superstition about bees dying if the beekeeper dies, might have a logical explanation in the fact that in such cases bees probably waste away from lack of proper care.

His apiary on Sunnyside Hill, Ellenville, boasts 22 hives and is patrolled by two strutting roosters which feed on dead workers and lazy drones lying on the doorstep of the hive.

He has both yellow Italian and grey Caucasian bees and will not bother with the black natives. The latter, he says, are invariably ugly and give bees, in general, a "bad name."

Bee-yards are inspected twice annually by state agents who are especially vigilant about condemning hives having dreaded "American foul brood" and "European foul brood"—both disastrous to new generations of bees.

The last big honey year in this section was 1936, when Mr. Bowes had 52 colonies that produced nearly a ton of honey.

Hunt Sea Mines With Big Fleet

Britain Has More Than 500 Small Vessels Engaged In Dangerous Task.

LONDON.—The British mine-sweeping which, in its preventive qualities, is the S. B. (special branch) of the royal navy, just as the fighting ships form the C. I. D., is the World War evolution of the trawler of the North sea coast. When that was ended there were 740 ships, only 25 per cent of which had been specially built, manned by 60,000 officers and men, employed in mine sweeping, directed from local naval stations.

Today the minesweeping service is directly under the control of the admiralty and has over 200 60-foot craft built and equipped for their special vocation, with 300 more converted trawlers, yachts and other suitable ships operated by nearly 50,000 selected officers and seamen. Large numbers of additional craft are under construction.

Just as this personnel is now carefully schooled in their dangerous calling, so the craft at their command are supplied with scientific apparatus, quite unknown at the beginning of the World War. It was the late Admiral Lord Fisher, then first sea lord, who put forward the idea of an organized hunt for mines; it was the late Admiral Lord Beresford who inaugurated the service as a regular auxiliary to the admiralty.

German Mines at Large.

A recent survey of the German mine fields revealed more at large than moored. According to The Hague convention mines at large should be safe—the breaking away from moorings should automatically destroy the detonator; it is so with British mines; the Germans, on the contrary, have adopted the practice of nearly severing the chain which pulls out the detonator and makes the mine harmless when adrift. Thus the chain often breaks and the mine floats away still a menace to ships.

Minesweeping is done in two ways. Either two ships haul a "sweep" (or trawl) between them, or a single ship throws out a "sweep" which is kept in such a position by kites that the sweep can be towed a mine field in much the same way as a reaping machine goes round a field of corn. When two ships are working together it is important that they should maintain station accurately. If one gets ahead of the other there is a danger that a mine picked up in the trawl may slide in upon the rearmost ship and destroy it.

Fleets Set Out at Dawn.

Daily from nearly all British seaports a number of minesweepers put to sea at dawn. Once they are clear of the harbor a signal flutters from the masthead of the leading vessel. In response to it odd numbered ships veer a barriore astern on a grass line. The ship next astern of them noses up alongside, picks up this barriore, and, hauling away the grass line, brings the sweep over the mine field where it is put on a slip.

Each pair of vessels opens out to "sweeping distance" apart, taking care to maintain perfect station. When the vessels are in position another signal is made by the senior officer's ship, and the kites, which keep the sweep wide at the right depth beneath the surface of the water, are lowered astern of every vessel. Each pair then turns off to sweep the area allotted to it for patrol; well knowing that the day's work will be long and rough and risky, for there is always the possibility of a sweeping craft bumping a mine and being blown up.

Ranchers War on Coyotes

Wyoming ranchmen, with cattle rustling no longer the problem it was 50 years ago, have joined in a drive to control a menace that costs them an estimated $1,000,000 a year. The stockmen, aided by the United States bureau of biological survey, co-operating agencies and sportsmen, waged a winning fight against predatory game, still bountiful in that far-flung state. Ranchmen, hunters, and government employees have joined forces in helping to eliminate bobcats, coyotes, predatory bears and rodents. The biological survey reports that in one year the bureau's combined salaries and farmer-hunter personnel accounted for 10,277 animals. Since the work was inaugurated in 1915, Hamm said, more than 123,000 predators had fallen before the guns and traps of hunters.

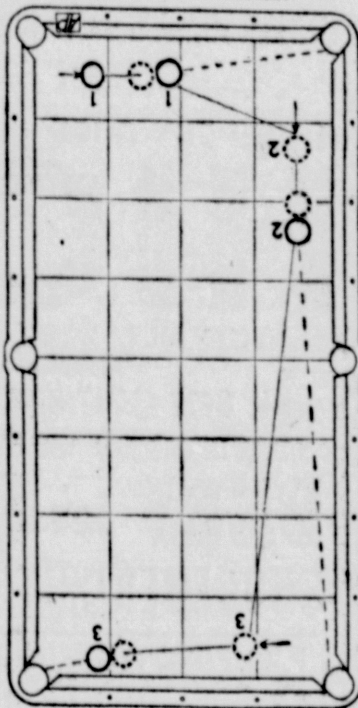

8,000-Mile Bicycle Trip

Four cyclists completed an 8,000-mile trip from the Far East of Russia, in Siberia, to Russia's western frontier. Three of them fought against the Japanese at Lake Has-san. Starting at the battleground of Mount Zhenzhenaya the party required 80 days to reach Moscow. The rest of the journey was completed quickly over asphalted roads to the western border. Weather conditions in Siberia were bad. On one stretch of the trip rain fell nearly 10 days. Sometimes the cyclists had to go on foot along the railway tracks for many miles. The commander of the run was A. Y. Timochov, who led the Komsomolsk-on-Amur to Moscow bicycle run in 1937.

Adulteration of food was prohibited in England as early as 1871.

How to Play POCKET BILLIARDS

By Charles C. Peterson
Famous Trick Shot Star
(Tenth In a Series)

FOLLOW SHOTS AND POSITION.

Follow shots in pocket billiards are just as important to position as draw shots. A follow shot is one in which the cue ball, after striking the object ball, tends to follow the general direction in which the cue ball is driven.

Since a cue ball struck below center will "draw," so too will a cue ball stroked above center "follow." Thus, in making a follow shot, stroke your cue ball about one half above the center of the ball. Avoid English whenever possible. Hold the cue level for the follow shot, make a firm bridge and deliver your stroke on the horizontal, striking the cue ball one-half above center.

When your follow is perfected, place the balls as in above diagram for shot Nos. 1, 2 and 3. After following on shot No. 1, you will be in position for shot No. 2. Follow on this shot will leave you in position for shot No. 3. With the ability to draw or follow on any shot, you will be in position for subsequent shots. Position, you know by this time, is the secret of making high runs in pocket billiards, since the position of the cue ball after a shot is made is never left to chance.

Boy Scout News

Today marks the beginning of Boy Scout Week, February 8 to 14, when will be celebrated the 30th anniversary of the incorporation of the Boy Scouts of America.

Some nine million present and former Scouts and their leaders will join in the celebration, the theme of which will be, "Scouting—the American Way."

Since Scouting provides for democratic group decisions and actions the celebration, which will be nationwide, will take on varied aspects as each troop marks the anniversary in accordance with its own plans.

Radio will play an important part and the high point of this week's observance will be a nationwide broadcast from the White House, Thursday night, February 8, when President Roosevelt, honorary president of the movement, will speak. He will be introduced by Walter W. Head of St. Louis, president of the Boy Scouts of America, who will speak from Detroit, Mich., where he will be attending a dinner of scout leaders.

At the conclusion of the President's address, Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive, will lead in repetition of the Scout Oath, cutting into the broadcast from Miami, Fla.

With more than half of the nation's 43,368 Cub Packs, Boy Scout troops and Senior Scout groups sponsored by churches and synagogues of America it will not be surprising to find scouts attending special church services in thousands of churches of every denomination on Sunday, February 11, which will be "Scout Reverence Day."

In many communities Scouts will take an "Old Scout Census," willing at residences to record the names and addresses of those who once were scouts or scout leaders.

Scouts will be speakers before many fraternal and civic clubs and hundreds of troops will have special "parents' night" meetings. Outdoor activities will have their part in the celebration, where weather permits.

Sons of Legion

There will be a meeting of the Sons of Legion tonight at 7:15 o'clock in the Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street.

Railroad Feud On Again; Sand Is Piled on Tracks

TOLEDO.—Dominic Ardolino, 80, has resumed stopping railroad trains. Ardolino, who has contended for years that the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad right of way is in his property, was arrested by railroad detectives on the charges of obstructing a railroad right of way.

On several occasions he had constructed a fence to block passage, but on his latest attempt he put a sandpile, topped with a flag, on the tracks, police said.

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—The boys who bet a bob or two on the fights are "getting down" for plenty on tomorrow night's Joe Louis-Arturo Godoy championship shindig, despite the fact the Brown Bomber is rated so highly that his next title defense already has been lined up.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who directs the activities of the fight game's most expensive and dangerous piece of bric-a-brac, broke just about all rules for fistic publicity last night in announcing, on the eve of one title tilt, that Louis' next trip to the post would be in April against Johnny Paycheck, the thin-haired heavyweight out of Des Moines who recently has run up quite a victory string.

Of course, "Uncle Mike" did qualify the announcement by pointing out that Louis would have to whip Godoy first, in 15 rounds or less tomorrow in Madison Square Garden. But not even the Chilean fisherman's best friends would tell him he figured to dethrone the champion.

Even the bettors, having examined the somewhat peculiar "schedule" of odds for the fight, let the one to seven price on the Bomber to finish on top in his ninth title defense strictly alone. Instead, they climbed aboard another item as a cinch to put meat and potatoes on the table.

This was a quotation of even money that Godoy would last five rounds. The odds-makers have rigged up a scale on just how long Arturo would be around, making him one to two to hang on for 10 and one to four to be on deck at the finish.

But the major betting was by the folks who dug down to put up their "fresh" on the chance that they'd get their money back on Arturo's durability and ability to answer the bell for the sixth heat. And the bookmakers reported that this particular item was so well liked that more than the usual amount of wagering being done.

The fact that Arturo is a rough customer and fights low—two peculiarities Louis definitely does not enjoy in a rival punch pitcher—was what the boys and girls liked about his chances to stay.

However, it was pointed out that there was little or no betting on the South American way being victorious.

Anyway, there are a lot of folks who are going to be around to see the thing unfold. In four previous Garden parties Joe has never failed to draw $100,000 into "Uncle Mike's" cash registers. He's going to keep his record intact tomorrow, for, at this writing it looks like some 19,000 cash customers will be on hand and "chip in" a pot of $110,000.

Joe To Get $40,000
With taxes on promotion taken off, Louis' 40 per cent of this should amount to about $40,000, and bring his ring earnings to over $1,700,000 for his skyrocket career.

Louis will be busy keeping several other of his records going, as well as the financial one. He has a string of seven straight "title" knockouts now and, as always, says he'll repeat this time "jes" as soon as I hit him the first good poke."

He has a yen for silencing those members of the cauliflower fraternity who brashly boast of nailing having been flattened. There were Bob Pastor and Mann, John Henry and Max Baer and the chunks of rock that was Paulino, all in the past. And you all know what happened. Well, Godoy has never been rocked to sleep either. Arturo, however, claims he'll be in a confident state to say about it. "I am confident," he proclaimed today, "that I will be the first South American to win the heavy-weight title." Well, the odds still are one to seven that he doesn't.

"The Eagles will find it plenty tough, when they get going against the Mt. Carmel boys," says Manager Frank Wojciechowski of the Polish quintet who figures that the record of nine victories and only three defeats means a lot in measuring the calibre of the visiting club.

With a victory tucked away over the West Point Helcats, the Eagles are back on the Glory Road and hope to turn in another win tomorrow. To date the Polish cagers have won 12 and lost four engagements.

Saturday night it'll be the Schenectady Y. M. C. A. team against the Bulldogs at the local "Y". . . . The upstarters are the northeastern district "Y" champions. . . . "Beans" Baltz is with the Bulldogs now. . . . He should figure as one of the leading defense men. . . . Joe Jacobs says Arturo Godoy will last the full route with Joe Louis. . . . They have a place at last. . . . Mike Jacobs and Mayor Hague of Jersey City have agreed to put the Tony Galento-Max Baer Finnish relief fund fight in the Jersey City armory. . . . National League teams are scheduled for 42 night games this summer. . . . Melio Bettina got a lot of good out of that second he imported from Miami for the Apostoli fight. . . . Larry White wants his Freddie to visit the Mayo Clinic for a check-up but the former champ is against it.

HIS FIGHTING DAYS ARE OVER

Even though his manager, Larry White, said he would never fight again, Freddie Apostoli of San Francisco managed to do a little cutting-up in a New York hospital where he was taken after being technically K.O'd in the 12th round of his fight with Melio Bettina. "He'll never draw on another glove for me," White said after doctors diagnosed Apostoli's ailment as grip. "He's lost something."

Hot-Shot Bowlers Are Not Always Cinches for Victory

The history of the city bowling tournament reveals that not always have the favored, hot-shot combinations won the tenpin titles in their respective divisions.

The so-called underdogs have come through to win official A. B. C. city titles on numerous occasions, according to Secretary Charles Tiano, of the Kingston Bowling Association, which is now engaged in mapping details for the forthcoming championships.

Kingston's fourth annual A. B. C. tournament is scheduled to start at the Y. M. C. A. on March 15, with 50 teams entered in the five-man event.

In the first tournament, held at St. Peter's alleys, the Central Hudson Keglers staged a big surprise by romping off with Class A five-man honors. The Central Hudson later repeated in Class B after Walt May had done some fancy juggling with the slide rule.

Ellenville's group of bowlers swept through the Class B section of the tournament last season when nobody conceded them even an outside chance.

Jack Martin was crowned singles champion one season when the city's experts were looking for one of the five sharpers to grab the crown.

So it has been during the history of the annual tenpin meet. It is usually an ordinary squad that captures the national A. B. C. In many respects the local meet is the same.

Any team or individual that carries an average in his own classification must be conceded a chance to win the title. Where only three games are involved, bowling form is apt to be very inconsistent. The sharpers can fold in the heat of tournament competition and the underdogs rise to championship heights.

Team captains are reminded by President Keresman that specified and requested dates will be allotted on a first come first served basis. Mr. Keresman emphasizes that the original schedule positively will not be altered after it is once printed. Furthermore, there will be no extension of the deadline, which is midnight, March 1.

Auto Racers Must Be Physically Fit

Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP)—Not much in the way of muscular development is required to drive one of the new super deluxe models being turned out by automobile manufacturers these days, but take it from Wilbur Shaw, it's a different matter piloting a stripped down speedster at better than 100 miles an hour.

The racing driver, like the prize fighter, must be in top physical condition to stand the punishment of his profession, said the dapper little king of automobile racers.

"You know race drivers have to train for their sport just like any other professional athlete," he explained.

Shaw, who won the 500-mile speed classic at Indianapolis in 1937 and again last year, declared that no sport puts more stress on physical fitness and stamina.

"At Indianapolis," he said, "we drive four and a half hours at tremendous speeds without a second to relax. We take terrific physical—and mental—punishment and the man who isn't in shape just doesn't last."

Shaw added that the principal requirement of a race driver is stamina, and to get it, the speed-ware devils have to train the year around. Stomach muscles, eyes, hands, wrists and forearms are strained most in the race.

Naturally, the best training, the 37-year-old driver asserted, is practice driving on race tracks.

But he breaks up the monotony of this routine by playing golf, badminton, bowling and riding horseback, all of which he says are excellent conditioners.

Here for a demonstration of safety driving, Shaw predicted that the driver who wins at Indianapolis this year would have to average 125 miles an hour, better, eight miles faster than the record of 117 miles an hour set by the late Floyd Roberts in 1938.

Power Boat Men Will Meet Tonight

The regular monthly meeting of the Kingston Power Boat Association will be held tonight at Fischer's hall, starting at 8 o'clock.

There are very important matters to be discussed at this meeting and Commodore Maurer requests every member to be on hand promptly.

Some time will be devoted to the model boat building committee to give in detail the progress of this event to be held in the spring.

Texas Longhorn Not to Die Out

Herd of 145 of Picturesque Cattle Cared for in Wildlife Refuge.

WASHINGTON. — At one time nearly the whole plains country from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border "belonged" to the longhorn. Today, according to the bureau of biological survey, fewer than 250 real Texas longhorn cattle are in existence.

The largest herd now is at the Wichita Mountains wildlife refuge near Cache, Okla., where about 145 of these picturesque animals roam the ranges under the biological survey's protection. Eighteen longhorns are on the Fort Niobrara game preserve near Valentine, Neb., and others are in private ownership.

The cattle at the Wichita refuge descend from 30 longhorns brought to the area in 1927, when it was administered by the forest service. One member of that original herd from the coastal plains of Texas still lives—"Old Red," a gaunt cow more than 20 years old.

Longhorns may be described as leggy, hardy, active animals with long keen horns and an aggressive disposition. In color they range from black, brindle, dun, spotted, buckskin, red, roan, and white to various combinations of these colors. Special characteristics are coarse hairs about the forehead and in the ears, and a fish-shaped prominence of the bone along the top of the rump just back of a line across the hips.

Breed Slower to Develop.
Slow to grow, a longhorn requires two or three more years to attain maturity than do other breeds of cattle. As long as the animal grows, the horns continue growing. On record are horns with spreads of six, seven and even eight feet, from tip to tip.

Saga of the longhorn goes back to 1521, when the first cattle were brought to American shores by Gregorio Villalobos, a governor-general sent to "New Spain." John Hatton, of the forest service and probably the outstanding living authority on longhorns, states that "these Spanish calves were the progenitors of the millions of longhorns that spread from Vera Cruz northward over the coastal plains of Texas and the plains region of the Far West. . . . They became the pioneers of our western cattle industry."

After the Civil war these cattle were still numerous. Then live stock breeders, however, began raising heavier, beefier cattle, and by 1920 it became apparent that only prompt action could save the Texas longhorn from extinction.

Attention was forcefully called to this fact by the late Will C. Barnes, public official, author and one-time cowman, who made it evident that the longhorn was dying out and should be preserved.

Wide Survey Made.
Barnes and John Hutton began a long trek back in July, 1927, in search of longhorns when they were working with the forest service. Not until the quest got under way did live stock breeders realize how close to extinction the longhorn was. In their efforts, the two foresters traveled more than 5,000 miles and examined more than 30,000 head of Texas cattle before they collected a herd of suitable specimens of the longhorn type.

Little by little, a herd of 20 cows, three bulls, three steers, and four calves was collected and shipped to the Wichita refuge, in August, 1927. From this nucleus of 30 the herd has increased to 146.

Longhorns are not a scrub breed, as many people think. Under favorable conditions, these cattle will develop into large, often fat animals.

Confusion of War Aids Struggling Young Doctor
LONDON.—A young London doctor, who only a few months ago was barely able to pay his office rent, now holds a high government position—and all because of a mistake.

Shortly after the outbreak of war, he received a letter from the ministry of health appointing him to take charge of a children's department outside of London.

Almost overcome with surprise and joy at being recognized by the government, the young man left London to take up his new post.

Later, it was discovered that it was a well-known Harley street specialist of the same name for whom the letter was intended, but by this time the young doctor was making such a good job of his new work that his appointment was regularized.

Dry Raiders Are Busy

On Prince Edward Isle

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I. —

Prince Edward Island—only province in Canada still under prohibition—plans to stay dry, even though thousands of troops are in training here. Military officers approve of the dry laws.

Artillery officers and Royal Canadian Mounted police have been conducting a series of raids through the capital, but as yet no bottle liquor has been found. In one blind pig, however, what was described as a "considerable quantity" of military equipment, evidently traded in for liquor, was recovered.

Scout in Vain

London, Feb. 8 (AP)—Lifeboat crews scanned the sea in vain at dawn today along a section of the east coast, looking for a clue to the cause of explosions which flashed against the sky during the night.

More than 2,100 gold medals and certificates have been awarded to Boy Scouts for life saving and heroism.

Blocking Thames River Would Close Busy Port

Any attempt to close the mouth of the Thames river with mines and sunk ships would, if effective, close to shipping one of the world's busiest rivers. For London is the second largest port in the world, annually receiving shipments from nearly 30,000 vessels.

About 160 miles long, the Thames at its mouth is more than five miles wide. It is about 750 feet wide at London.

Daily, 500 vessels pass through the mouth of the Thames. The port of London receives and ships over its 1,700 wharves goods valued in excess of $3,500,000,000 a year. It has 700 acres of enclosed dock water, and five miles of quays. The docks extend 25 miles below the city. In the era of the sail, even without dredging, the largest seagoing vessels could sail directly up the Thames to the London wharves.

For centuries, the Thames with its many tributaries has furnished power for English mills and industry, according to the National Geographic society. Huge hammers weighing two, three and four hundred pounds were powered by water, as were the great metal cutters and the roaring bellows behind blast furnaces and forges.

Aside from its economic importance to London and England, the river's popular appeal is in its scenery and history. It has been said that "The Thames is liquid history." Up and down the valley the tides of war have ebbed and flowed, as various forces advanced and retired, Britons and Romans, Saxons and Danes, Cavaliers and Roundheads.

It also has been called the stream of pleasure, where London holiday throngs witness boat races and join boating and fishing parties. Its banks lure bicyclists, hikers and painters. When roads were fewer in England, the river was a great thoroughfare. Many old riverside taverns still extend hospitality to wayfarers.

U. S. Board Ends Dispute Over Naming of Island

A 160-year dispute over the correct name of the island on which the Statue of Liberty stands ended with the announcement by the United States board of geographical names that its correct name is "Bedloe's island."

The New York harbor island has been called "Bedlow island," "Bedloe island" and "Bedloes island," since it was owned by Isaac Bedloe between 1667 and 1672.

The geographical names board of the interior department decides disputes over names and selects names for places heretofore unnamed.

"Under Secretary Ickes," the announcement on the board's work stated, "the policy of the board has been to avoid officially naming places and objects after living persons so that the christening function cannot be used for political purposes."

Among the 398 decisions handed down in the last year was one concerning a bayou in Louisiana. The stream, located in Terrebonne parish, should be called "Bayou Col-yell," the board decided. It should not be called "Bayou Go-to-Hell."

Clean Stove Works Well

Any kind of household equipment works better for being kept clean, unclogged, and uncluttered, and the gas stove is no exception. If spilled foods are permitted to choke up the burners or if the oven walls become coated with grease, the stove cannot be expected to function properly. Daily wiping with a cloth well wrung out of lukewarm soapsuds will keep the enameled surface, inside and outside, spotless. Except for spilled foods, which always should be mopped up at once, it is best to do the washing when the stove cools off. Be sure to remove the broiler racks for frequent soap and water scrubbing or burned foods may discolor the metal permanently. To prevent the top burners from becoming clogged, detach them once a week or so and scrub them with hot soapsuds and soda.

Tigers in Japan

That tigers once roved Japan is the opinion of Hajime Uchida, zoologist of the Science Museum of Hitaya Ward, Tokyo, after completing an investigation of the contents of a chest donated to the Azuma shrine in 1199. The chest was believed to have contained the head of a lion, but Uchida pronounces the head that of a tiger. Because the articles in the chest are held secret, priests of the shrine objected to a detailed examination. The shrine holds the soul of Princess Ototachibana, consort of Prince Yamatoharu, according to the legend. It is related that while on a ship during a tempest she leaped into the waves to appease the angry waters, sacrificing her own life, but saving that of her husband.

Moose Be Wrong?

Many Indian tribes believed the moose came from the sea . . . and some believed that if the animal were hunted too heavily, he would return to the ocean as a natural refuge . . . which is a perfectly natural belief . . . because, if moose were seen by unreasonable Indians swimming from some distant, unseen island land, it might well be thought to come from the open water.

Rainfall Lighter Than Evaporation

That evaporation of water is greater than the rainfall during the year is shown by tests made at the water department in Charleston, S. C., which show that the annual average evaporation from water to be 48.35 inches. These figures are taken over a 34-year period.

According to the records in the city engineer's office the average rainfall in Kingston over a six-year period is 39 inches or approximately nine inches less than the annual evaporation of the water in the reservoir.

At the present time Cooper Lake is seven feet below the normal water line, and is about two-thirds full.

Pelley Admits He Is an Anti-Semite

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—William Dudley Pelley, the trim, be-whiskered chief of the Silver Shirt Legion, proclaimed from the witness chair of the Dies committee today that he feels toward Jews in the United States "exactly as the Nazi party" does toward members of that race in Germany.

He qualified this declaration, however, by saying that it did not mean he would "countenance all the methods Mr. Hitler may have put in force."

"Are you anti-Semitic?" asked Rep. Casey (D., Mass.), a member of the House group investigating unAmerican activities.

"I would call myself very much so," Pelley replied.

In the course of his testimony the witness, who already had professed his "admiration" for the Dies committee despite the immediate protests of some of its members, said that if the committee continued its investigations of unAmerican activities his Silver Shirts Legion would "fold up."

The legion, which the committee has assailed as "Fascist," has been described by its leader as being against unAmerican activities. But he testified that due to the committee's work conditions in that respect have improved much in recent years.
